

Norwegians Fear Defensive Fight, Must Keep Aloof

Free Commerce Is Vital to Nation's Neutral Status, Koht Informs Parliament

Answers Allies Tells France, Britain No Restrictions Possible Aiding Them Alone

Oslo, April 6 (P)—Norway will "at once be at war" in defense of her neutrality if free shipping in Norwegian waters is interfered with to the advantage of one of the belligerent major powers, Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht told the Norwegian Storting (Parliament) today.

The foreign minister made this statement in discussing Norway's neutral position in relation to the shipping problems in connection with foreign policy—in particular to iron ore exports from Narvik.

The British-French allies have protested to Norway and Sweden against allowing German ships to use Scandinavian territorial waters for carrying raw materials such as Swedish ore to Germany. British notes reported to outline the British position on neutrality were handed to the Norwegian and Swedish ministers in London yesterday.

"If the allied powers should ask us to stop free shipping, which goes on according to generally acknowledged international law and which they themselves have acknowledged," said Koht, "this would either be of great damage to themselves or, if such hindrance of shipping should be one-sided against one party and therefore in open conflict with the neutrality which we have pledged ourselves to maintain, Norway will then at once be at war."

Koht's reference to "great damage to themselves" for the allies apparently was acknowledgement of belief that Britain might insist on one delivery herself while blocking those to Germany.

"I have stated publicly that people exaggerate the importance of the ore export," the foreign minister declared.

Export Is Reduced
"Circumstances have reduced this export to one-fourth during the war months and much more Swedish ore goes to England than to Germany."

In addition, it should be evident that free sailing of commercial ships in Norwegian waters is of at least the same advantage for the allies, chiefly for Britain, as for Germany since we have a much bigger trade with Britain than with Germany."

In his review of Norway's foreign policy—to be the subject of parliamentary debate next Tuesday—Koht stressed that Norway's neutral position was unaltered, that this neutrality has been maintained impartially and that "we cannot think of any other war as possible for this country than a war in which we are forced to defend our independence and freedom."

Norway, he declared, has "painstakingly fulfilled her obligations" as regards the "normal exchange of goods, as far as possible."

He sharply attacked the sinking of Norwegian merchantmen by German warcraft, declaring that during the war Norway has lost 40 ships totaling 120,000 tons and 52 persons killed.

Of the lost vessels, he said, at least 12 definitely were sent to the bottom by submarines or other warships or airplanes.

"In all these cases," Koht stated, "the warcraft belonged to Germany. In three cases, sinking was made in accordance with international law."

Sharp Protest
"In the other nine cases," he said, "we have had to protest sharply."

Koht added that it was "difficult to remain cool when hearing of such attacks on innocent seamen as the bombing of the Mira Wednesday with over 100 persons on board."

"We cannot acknowledge any right to such procedure even if this Norwegian ship sailed under British protection," he declared.

(The Mira, a 1,152-ton vessel, arrived in Bergen yesterday with 97 passengers and reported it had been bombed eight times by German planes while traveling in British convoy. Two of the passengers were slightly injured by bomb splinters.)

Koht emphasized that Norwegian shipping was being conducted in accordance with trade agreements signed February 23 with Germany, and March 11 with Great Britain, and said an agreement was expected to be signed shortly with France.

Scandinavian countries have proposed jointly to Germany, he said, that the matter of "legal rights" be the subject of a conference but have received no reply.

Berlin Says Notes Vital To Europe

Decisive Week-End Is Before Contingent as Allies Outline Their Opinions

Duce Has Plan Italy Is Ready to Put All Under Momentary Discipline

Berlin, April 6 (P)—Another "decisive week-end for Europe" has come, in the opinion of authorized German sources today, with the delivery of French and British notes to the Scandinavian countries.

On the answer to these notes or the attitude taken by the Scandinavian countries, Halvdan Koht told the Norwegian Storting today that Norway would be at war "at once" to defend her neutrality if there were any one-sided interference with free shipping in Norwegian waters.

(In Oslo, Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht told the Norwegian Parliament today that Norway would be at war "at once" to defend her neutrality if there were any one-sided interference with free shipping in Norwegian waters.)

Authorized sources said the German government, these sources said, is not yet in possession of concrete information concerning the allied representations.

Official circles, however, were said to view with considerable interest that both the Swedish and Norwegian press were trying to minimize the importance of the communications by speaking of them merely as "information containing no severe threat."

Apparent unanimity in Scandinavian press comment was taken as a sign of possible hints from above.

Seen through German eyes, the allied notes constituted a new attempt to interfere with Scandinavian policies.

Authorized sources said the western powers had indicated repeatedly of late that they wanted the conflict widened and said Scandinavia is one important area to which they might wish to extend it.

As evidence of the alleged aggressive intentions of the western powers, Germans cited a recent speech of French blockade minister Georges Monnet, which authorized sources interpreted as implying that the western powers feel they are justified in taking any means on grounds that they are fighting for freedom and justice.

Italy Is Under New Program

Rome, April 6 (P)—The Italian government, was ready today to place the nation under wartime discipline at a moment's notice with promulgation of a new mobilization law applicable even to women and children.

The law gave the supreme defense commission—headed by Premier Mussolini—sweeping authority over the civilian population in case of war.

It authorized requisitioning of citizens' services, included those of women and children more than 13 years old, of industrial organizations, real estate and personal property as well as control of foreign commerce and rationing.

The law, adopted by the council of ministers Tuesday and published last night, provided that mobilization should be ordered by royal decree on the advice of Mussolini.

'Her Mother Made Her Do It'

Distraught Barton Davis, Los Angeles grocery store manager, is shown with his 11-year-old daughter, Chloe, after police questioned her about the hammer deaths of her mother, two sisters and a brother. Chloe denied she struck her sisters and Davis said he believed her story that the mother made Chloe strike her and the three-year-old brother. "Chloe couldn't have done a thing like this," her father said. "Her mother made her."

Chloe Davis Confounds Criminologists in West

Authorities at One Point Are Ready to Believe She Killed All Four, Then Reverse Opinion; Holds to Tale Despite Autopsy

Los Angeles, April 6 (P)—Eleven-year-old Chloe Davis, unruffled by a quadruple slaying before her eyes and by two days of questioning by police and physicians, has confounded criminologists who would have blamed her for the deaths.

Chloe, her flaxen hair in pigtails, told such a startling tale, when her mother, Mrs. Lolita Davis, her two sisters and her little brother were found dead in their home Thursday, that authorities could not at first accept it.

Chloe said her mother hammered the three children almost to death, attempted to kill Chloe and then "tried to set my hair on fire, and then made me hit her with the hammer until she stopped breathing."

Elaborates Upon Story
Later, said Police Captain Edgar Edwards, Chloe elaborated upon the story, saying that after her mother "stopped talking" she (Chloe) also struck the boy to make him quit groaning. "The two died after being taken to a hospital."

Chloe also added a day later, that her mother had forced her to bring a razor with which the woman could slash her wrists.

Just before Chloe "remembered about" the razor-slashing, officers learned for the first time—from an autopsy report—that Mrs. Davis died not of head wounds but of bleeding from cut arteries of the arms.

Edwards at one point in the questioning said he was prepared to accuse Chloe of all of the killings. Now he and other authorities have come to believe the girl's story in its essential points.

F. Barton Davis, the husband and father, insisted that "Chloe didn't do it, no matter what the police think. If she did, her mother made her do it. She believed she had the power of demons."

Night Club Singer Abducted by Gang, Is Turkus' Story

Assistant to O'Dwyer Says Those Held in High Jail Are Safer Than if They Were Free

New York, April 6 (P)—Glamor boys of Brooklyn's murder mob once fell for a young night club singer, kidnapped and assaulted her, and then considered killing her to seal her lips.

This was disclosed yesterday by Assistant District Attorney Burton B. Turkus, who said the gangsters finally decided to buy off the 17-year-old girl's mother with $500 and instructions to keep her silent.

"Brutally they sat about and debated whether to buy or bury her," Turkus explained at a Supreme Court bail hearing.

The prosecutor offered this incident about another girl in opposing reduced bail for 25-year-old Evelyn Mittleman, held as a material witness in $50,000 bail. Her release was refused.

Turkus expressed fear that Miss (Continued on Page Five)

Statements Defend Acts Of 17 Men

Counsel for Defense Pictures Accused Conspirators as Patriots

Blames Reds Says Indictment Was Brought About by Red Agents

New York, April 6 (P)—A picture of law-abiding men planning to block a "Communist front" as opposed to a federal charge that they plotted to overthrow the United States government emerged today from introductory statements in the trial of 17 men accused of seditious conspiracy.

Leo Healy, counsel for 11 of the 17, outlined his defense yesterday by telling a federal court jury:

"It is the Communist front which has conspired to overthrow good government. If there was any conspiracy at all, there was a conspiracy on the part of these 11 defendants to overthrow the Communist front—the very foundation of which is to overthrow the United States government and everything that's good."

Healy charged the indictment was based on the activities of two provocateurs "planted" by the Communist government of Russia, the Communist party of New York state and "certain officials holding high government positions in Washington" with a view of discrediting the Christian front.

Not On Trial
In his opening address, U. S. Attorney Harold M. Kennedy made it clear "that the Christian front is not on trial here, nor is any race, creed or religion on trial."

The sole issue, he said, was whether the defendants actually plotted against the government, and stole firearms from armories.

As court adjourned for the week-end, Dennis A. Healy, a Brooklyn National Guardsman and civil engineer, still was on the stand as a government witness.

He testified he posed as a member of the accused group, after consultation with agents of the federal bureau of investigation.

Healy said he had participated in numerous meetings of the alleged plotters, reporting developments to the FBI.

Refreshing his memory frequently from a brown notebook, Healy declared that Claus Erneck, one of the defendants, urged him to join an organization to which Erneck belonged "as a machine gunner and machine gun inspector."

Erneck told him, the witness said, that the organization had a membership of more than 300,000, with members from high in city, state and federal governments.

"The Jews would be incited to revolution," Erneck told me, "and we would step in and take over. He told me that Hitler also started with a small group and that if we got in on the ground floor we could be the government," Healy said.

Flood Waters Recede
Olean, N. Y., April 6 (P)—Flood waters in western and central New York were receding today under sunny skies and dropping temperatures while Adirondack foothills poured water into the Mohawk Valley and flooded the state Barge Canal at Utica. Canal water covered Utica harbor docks to a depth of 10 inches and the Mohawk river ran seven to eight feet above normal at midnight. Low water level at Delta Dam and in Hinchley reservoir dispelled threats of floods in Mohawk lowlands, canal officials said.

Orton T. Rounds, farmer living in an unincorporated section southeast of here, contrived a round-up of his livestock yesterday by rowboat and asserted he had saved a number of small pigs by wrapping them in inflated inner tubes.

Al Gets Two Donkeys
New York, April 6 (P)—Al Smith, who is honorary night superintendent of the Central Park Zoo at a salary of 10 cents per year, has two new charges: Giovanni and Ciucciorello, Sardinian donkeys. The former governor accepted the animals yesterday from Arthur G. Hoffman of Orange, N. J. They were installed in the pony house at the zoo, across Fifth Avenue from Smith's home.

Flood Levels Off
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 6 (P)—The Susquehanna river's second flood crest within a week levelled off today far short of the previous high. Headwaters near the Pennsylvania-New York line, gorged again Thursday by rain that washed more snow from mountain lands, dropped steadily. The crest moved rapidly downstream.

Weather Outlook
Weather outlook for week beginning April 8: North and middle Atlantic states: Showers first half of week and again at end, moderate temperature first part, colder middle and warmer latter part.

Hull-for-President Talk Is Heard in Washington Because of Trade Victory

Vandenberg Drive Quickens

Supporters of Michigan Republican Would Have Farm State Test of His Strength With Dewey

Omaha, Neb., April 6 (P)—A last minute drive for votes by supporters of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) in the Nebraska presidential preference primary next Tuesday quickened the tempo today in a farm state test of the Michigan man and Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney.

Lee Rankin of Lincoln, Nebraska manager of the Dewey forces, declared he had no immediate plans to "step up" his campaign. He denied rumors that New York workers will be brought into the state to aid the Dewey cause.

Senator Gerald P. Nye (R., N. D.) will speak at Fremont, Neb., tonight in behalf of Vandenberg.

Senators Capper of Kansas and McNary of Oregon endorsed Vandenberg as a friend of agriculture in messages to Charles S. Reed of Omaha, chairman of the Vandenberg committee of Nebraska.

McNary, Senate Republican leader, said that farm friends "will always be safe with Senator Vandenberg," and Capper telegraphed that "the American farmers can trust Arthur Vandenberg and their trust will not be betrayed."

Dewey's success in winning all 24 of Wisconsin's delegates to the national Republican convention stirred the Vandenberg forces into action. Agricultural Nebraska will send 14 delegates, bound only morally by the outcome of Tuesday's balloting.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, co-manager of the Dewey campaign, will arrive in Omaha today for a 25 minute stop. She is en route to Oregon, Washington and other states.

Meanwhile Frank Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher whose name is not on the ballot with Dewey and Vandenberg, made a bid for farm support in a speech at Lincoln last night.

Justice Declares Middletown Work Part of Treatment

Points Out That State's Burden Not Absolute, if Patient Has Any Funds of Own

Work done at the Middletown State Hospital by inmates is not done in the nature of employment but is a part of the treatment and is done to keep their minds off their own mental condition, so held Justice William Murray in special term here Friday when an application to collect $7 a week for care and maintenance of William Brady who was committed to the hospital in 1930 from Ulster county.

David Moses, appearing for the attorney general's office for the motion, asked that there be paid by the committee of Mr. Brady the sum of $7 per week out of moneys of the incompetent. Mr. Brady's son, appearing by Robert Duke of Walden, held that since Mr. Brady was employed on the dairy and at carpenter work about the premises that he earned his keep and more in addition was in effect working for his board.

Some time ago Mr. Brady suffered a blow on the head while employed as a carpenter and since then his mental condition has existed. Counsel said that his condition was not violent and he was almost constantly employed about the property. His estate amounts to about $1,100 and counsel argued that if this is used up for care there will be no funds left for his maintenance later should he need it and no funds for burial purposes at his death.

Police Find Man Dead, Wife Said To Be Divinite

Notes Indicate Brooklyn Man and Wife Separated Because of Economic Troubles in Home

Apparent effort of a husband and wife to find escape from their troubles was believed the cause of tragic climax in Brooklyn yesterday.

For Mrs. Laura Scheafner, 40, refuge at the High Falls heaven of Father Divine, seemed the choice of escape, while death appeared the only way out for her husband, Floyd Scheafner.

According to the New York police, the husband, a WPA laborer, seemed to find life unbearable without his family and Patrolman Edwin Neff called by an apartment superintendent, kicked in the door of Scheafner's fourth-floor flat at 527 Throop avenue, Brooklyn, and found the 43-year-old man's body in the gas-filled kitchen.

Near the body was a note from Mrs. Scheafner to a neighbor. It said in effect that Mrs. Scheafner had nothing more to do with the apartment and explained "I am happy and contented," also "Margaret." The latter is her 10-year-old daughter, who she had taken with her to the Divine retreat.

Patrolman Neff said that he found another note, penciled by Scheafner, saying his wife and daughter were "at the Father Divine Sisters' Mission at High Falls."

According to information given by the police, Mrs. Scheafner joined the Divine cult shortly before.

Army Day Provides Nation Chance to Measure Progress

Washington, April 6 (P)—Army Day—the twenty-third anniversary of American entry into the World War—gave the nation an opportunity today to gauge the progress made in transforming the country's land forces into a streamlined, hard-hitting machine.

Reviewing the record of the past year, military officials expressed gratification at the success of the program for reinforcing national defenses.

The day's martial parades in scores of cities attested the revolutionary process. Regular army troops were conspicuous by their absence because five divisions were undergoing field training in the south.

These regulars, national guardsmen, and the garrisons of Hawaii, the Panama Canal and other outlying posts received from President Roosevelt "thanks and congratulations" for their energy and efficiency in carrying out the purposes of his proclamation of a limited national emergency last September.

An inventory based on the latest official reports by Secretary Woodring, General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, and others, figuring prominently in the preparedness efforts would indicate that the war department's long

Chamber Votes 42 to 37 to Extend Reciprocal Pacts for Three Years From June 12

Is Big Victory

Legislation's Approval Is Tactical Defeat for Garner

Washington, April 6 (P)—Senate approval of the reciprocal trade agreements program made that fundamental administration policy an issue of the presidential campaign today and stirred fresh speculation as to Secretary Hull's chances of being the Democratic standard bearer.

The Senate, following the leadership of President Roosevelt and the secretary of state, voted 42 to 37 late yesterday to continue the program three years from its scheduled June 12 expiration date.

The chamber sent the House-approved legislation to Mr. Roosevelt after bowing over a dozen restrictive amendments which administration leaders contended would cripple the system of bargaining down tariffs reciprocally and impair its value as an instrument for world peace.

All of the 20 Republicans present voted against continuance of the President's authority to enter into the trade agreements. Their leaders made it clear that the country would hear much more of their opposition between now and the November election.

On the Democratic side, western Senators who fought with the Republican opposition were beginning to wonder how their position would stack up with the next Democratic platform.

Acceptance for Convention
It was predicted generally that the Democratic convention would accept the principle of reciprocal trade.

Final approval of the legislation gave the President and Hull their top triumph of the session—and it left behind at least a tactical defeat for Vice President Garner.

Garner, a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination regardless of whether Mr. Roosevelt seeks a third term, was active behind the scenes in support of an amendment to continue the trade program for a single year only.

Those in a position to know said Garner urged several senators to vote for the amendment, which drew opposition from the President.

The one-year limitation, advanced by Senator Walsh (D., Mass.), was defeated, 46 to 34. Some of Garner's oldest Senate friends worked with the administration against it.

Interest in the Vice President's position was intensified by the fact that Hull, day-in-and-day-out advocate of the reciprocal trade program, has been mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate if Mr. Roosevelt does not seek a third term.

Analysts Give Hope
Some analysts thought the passage of the trade agreements bill would enhance the secretary's chances of winning the Democratic presidential nomination, but others thought the division within the party on the trade issue would injure his prospects.

Hull said in a formal statement that the Senate's approval of the program would bring "profound satisfaction" to all who had observed operation of the plan "from the standpoint of our best national interest."

Under the program, the President may readjust tariffs upward or downward as much as 50 percent in agreements with foreign nations. Twenty-two such agreements already have been made.

Supporters contend the system clears clogged channels of world trade, helps nations generally to obtain needed supplies and, thereby, promotes peace.

Opponents, on the other hand, argue that it increases unemployment in the United States by lowering barriers to competitive foreign products, and that it violates the Constitution. The latter argument is based upon the premise that trade agreements are treaties, and thus should be ratified by two-thirds of the Senate.

Business Men to Meet
The regular monthly meeting of the Central Business Men's Association will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday at 8 o'clock. Matters of interest will be presented. A full attendance is earnestly requested.

Bids Due Monday
Monday at noon is the last that bids for park concessions in the city will be received by the board of public works. All bids must be in the office of the board in the city hall at that time. The bids will be opened and the concessions granted at the regular monthly meeting of the board next week.

Asks Cancer Drive Groups Will Meet At YMCA Monday

Mayor C. J. Heiselman released the following proclamation asking for support to the drive against cancer by the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer:

A Proclamation
Whereas, an intensive nationwide campaign of education against cancer has been launched by the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, and

Whereas, a unit of the Army organized by leading women and directed by outstanding physicians is now engaged in this community in its war to save human life, and

Whereas, cancer is a disease that may strike anyone of us and against which each of us may by intelligence and alertness protect himself or herself to a real degree, and

Whereas, many persons in this community died of cancer last year, some of them needlessly, and

Whereas, one out of seven of those now over 40 will die in the future of this disease unless appropriate action is taken.

Therefore, I, Conrad J. Heiselman, as mayor of the city of Kingston, urge all men and women to unite in supporting the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, and ask that our citizens generously contribute financial assistance to this great work, and I formally set aside April as Cancer Control Month.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this fifth day of April, 1940.

CONRAD J. HEISELMAN,
Mayor.

Boys' Gym Event And Craft Show Plans Progress

Plans for the annual Boy's Division Gym and Craft Exhibit of the Y. M. C. A. are progressing rapidly. It was announced today.

The dinner to be held in connection with the exhibit this year is under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. and they are planning one of their famous dinners. The menu will include both fish and meat and will be topped with large slices of foamy lemon meringue pie.

The date for the big show is April 12, 1940. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock sharp following which special gym awards will be made by Mr. McCluskey, physical director of the Y. M. C. A. At 7:45 o'clock the gym exhibit will get under way with the various groups demonstrating skills and knowledge that they have learned during the year under Mr. McCluskey's direction.

The evening will also serve as an excellent opportunity for the mothers and dads to get a glimpse of the renovated workshop now swinging along in great style for the use of the boys in the division. The boys have been asked to bring in some of the things that they have made during the year and it is hoped these things will serve to show the interest and popularity of the shop. Mr. Church, director of the workshop has been working for several months now in organizing the boys into groups according to interest and aptitude.

Awards for the current year will be made only at the gym exhibit. It will be necessary for the boys to be at the "Y" on April 12 either for the dinner or following the dinner for the exhibit to be eligible for the smart 1939-40 Y. M. C. A. emblems.

Colonial Hardware Is Product of Unique Local Industry

Idea Which Comes From Another Age Has Current Value

Architect Myron S. Teller in Reconstruction Work Found Need for Copies of Old Iron Pieces

Sounds from a ringing anvil have been the metronome of early American progress from the cross roads to the big trade centers and this heritage, which has made the blacksmith a symbol of national strength and character, has not yet outlived its usefulness.

Today from this city, which is among the richest in colonial and American tradition, this pealing intonation of iron against iron, still asserts itself with a claim to lasting life.

This work of bending iron to the will of men belongs to an age when hands were more important than machines and from that age too comes the inspiration for its lasting future.

From a shop on Washington avenue in Higginsville comes this daily music of smithies at work and the sound there was a tradition in the neighborhood before the turn of the century.

Unique in Nation

Tradition itself now lends a new dignity to the craft and the workmen have acquired an artistry which makes the shop unique in the nation.

It all began in the early years in the career of Myron S. Teller, local architect, who is now also a manufacturer of hand-wrought hardware.

"He couldn't buy it...so he made it," explains a pamphlet on the work of Mr. Teller and that sums up the reason for starting one of the most interesting small industries of the region.

Restored Old Houses

In his early practice, Mr. Teller restored many of the old Dutch houses of Kingston and Ulster county.

The architect was impressed with the number and variety of old examples he found still in use and realizing then what an important feature hardware was in restoration work, he began collecting and making a study of the manner in which they applied to the old houses here and in other localities.

Through this early restoration work he developed a practical hobby and through inspired work and study gained a wide knowledge of the great variety in their design as influenced by the countries in Europe from which the colonial settlers came.

Employed Blacksmith

As he continued in his work, however, Mr. Teller soon found it impossible to purchase hardware which truly duplicated that of colonial origin in form and finish and he finally arranged with a local blacksmith, whom he found interested, to reproduce the various units from authentic models under his supervision.

After preliminary experimental work he was able to supply typical hardware units for his own clients and from that start, has grown an enterprise which has made him nationally known.

Soon after his start with the first blacksmith, it became necessary for him to train more craftsmen and the work was developed on a larger scale, as other architects, attracted by the results of his work, asked for his assistance.

From the shop on Washington avenue colonial hardware parts are shipped to all parts of the country.

The workmen turn out door handles and latches, hinges, iron and brass rim locks, spring latches, Mortise latches and latches mounted on plates.

All Types Made

Every type of iron piece used in colonial construction are made at the shop and they can be produced at any required size. The workmen produce also such items as mud scrapers, pot hooks and chains, shutter hardware, chimney or wall anchors and a variety of other units.

Mr. Teller since he first began this interesting work has collaborated with many architects and their clients on important restoration work throughout the country.

Among them is the rebuilding of Washington's birthplace at Westmoreland, Va., for which he designed the hardware following the character in fragments found in the excavations and examples in old houses in that region as submitted by Architect Edward W. Donn.

For F. D. R. Library

More recently designs for hardware units for the new Franklin D. Roosevelt library at Hyde Park were accepted, and the work is now being turned out at the shop under his supervision.

Other projects in which Mr. Teller has had a part include the Jumel Mansion, New York city; the residence of Joseph Hergesheimer, West Chester, Pa., and the house of Justice Owen J. Roberts at Phoenixville, Pa.

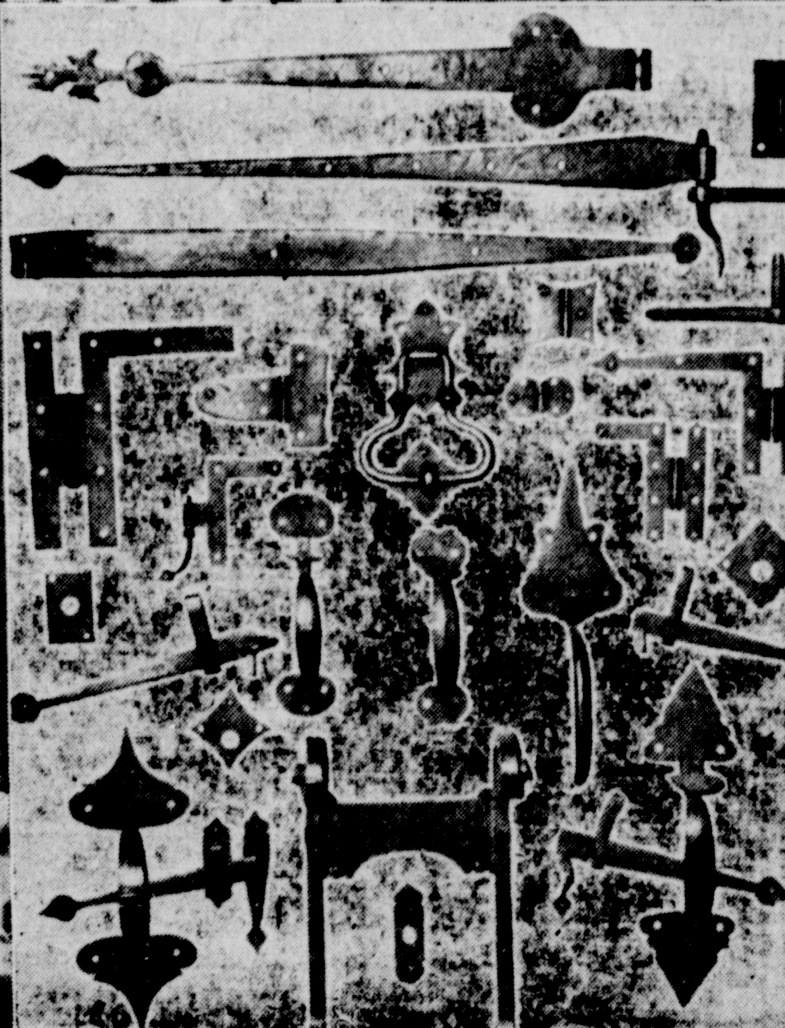

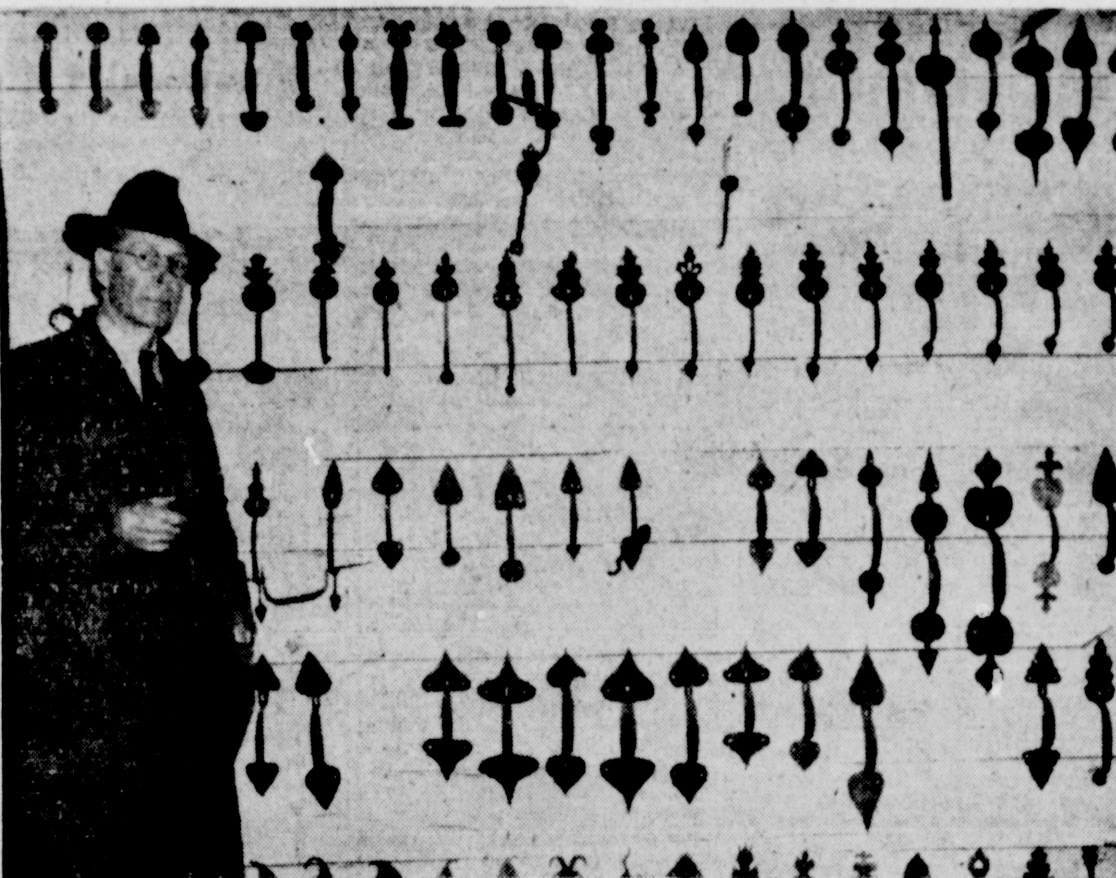

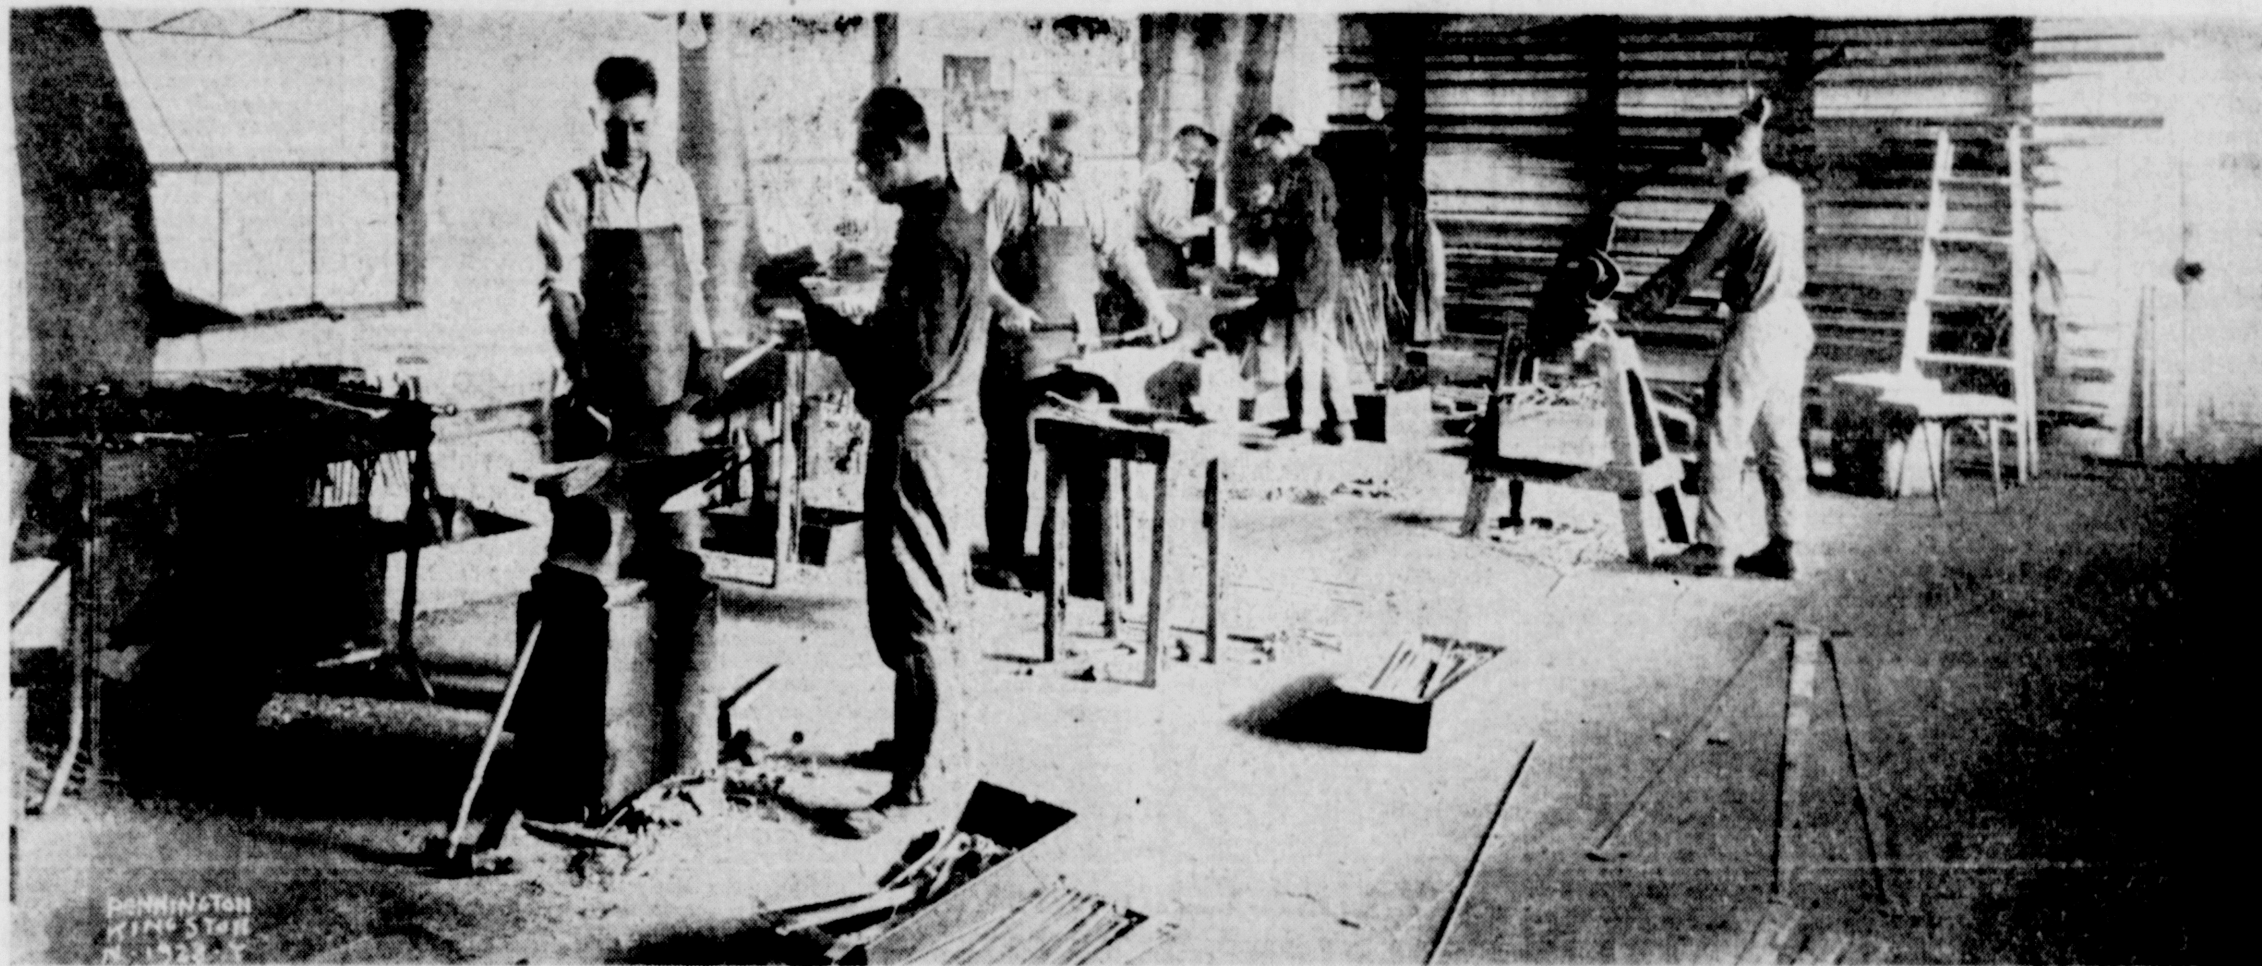

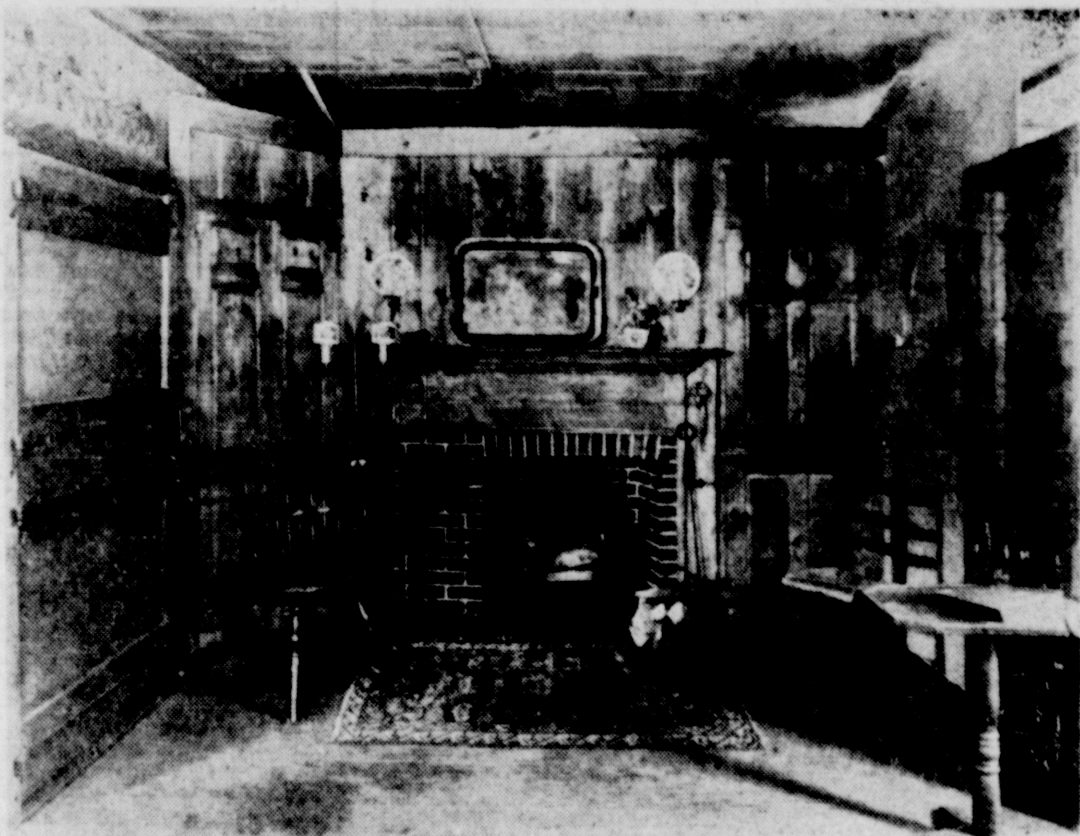

Among the old houses of the region for which Mr. Teller did work earlier in his career are: The Tappan House for the D. A. R., at Green and Crown streets; the Garrett Van Keuren House, for Andrew Carl, Green and John streets; the Van Buren House, Green street and Maiden lane, for the late Mrs. Gordon Fiero, the Sally Tocks Inn at Stone Ridge for Mrs. Emily Chadbourne and the Liberty, at New Paltz.

Work Exhibited

Work and collections which represent the interesting combination of Mr. Teller's profession and his practical hobby were exhibited at the recent hobby show in the Bernstein building.

Similar displays were shown at the New York World's Fair last

Smithies Turn Out Fine Handiwork of Another Era

In the former blacksmith shop of the late Fred Luithe on Washington avenue hands of men which once knew only the heavier work of the blacksmith are turning out work which would be a credit to any craftsman. These iron parts find their way to homes of Colonial design in all parts of the country. Above are scenes in the quaint shop where just about everything is done by hand: At top are two views in the front room of the shop showing displays of the parts and their typical use. Next is a general view of the interior, taken some time ago and next left is a view of Myron S. Teller, originator of the idea,

year and at the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1926. Nestling among the other buildings on High street, not far from the Benjamin Franklin print shop at the Philadelphia Exposition, was a small blacksmith shop, which represented the central theme of Mr. Teller's exhibit.

The forge there was operated from early morning until late at night and on its anvils were made hardware fittings used in the High street restorations under Mr. Teller's directions.

At the World's Fair, Mr. Teller was impressively represented among the craftsmanship exhibit and through such efforts his work has become better known nationally.

Authority on Subject

Mr. Teller is unquestionably the greatest authority in the country on colonial hardware and he has given much time and study to the finest details of design and construction and particularly to the authentic origin of design.

Careful attention is given by Mr. Teller to the desires of those for whom he turns out the work and he is watchful of the consistency of pattern in producing the various units required by a customer.

Virtually all of the work in the Teller shop is done by hand. The men pound all of the units into shape as the hot iron is taken from the forge. They are worked in every minute detail by these men, who are now experts in their trade.

Fine work, which achieves the proper effect in design for some of the more delicate pieces, is done by cutting and filing and each unit is painted when finished.

The one machine in the shop is used only occasionally on a piece where it might be required, but mostly everything in the place from the finest nail to the largest metal piece, is completed by hand.

Through this idea which began as a hobby, Mr. Teller has assisted many to obtain hardware of appropriate design and renewed an interest in an old handicraft. It has given Kingston and Ulster county an industry which fits in with the colorful history of the region and one which has proved its value in keeping contact with the interesting past.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Case Dismissed

Brookline, Mass.—They didn't even docket this dastardly case.

An 8-year-old boy telephoned police and asked that a policeman be sent to his home at once. The officers wanted to know what for. "Ma has taken my shoes because I didn't do my home work and I want the policeman to make her give them back so I can go out with the gang."

Just then another voice came on the wire: "Never mind, officer. I'll be the patrolman in this case."

Jail Security

Newburyport, Mass.—Former Mayor Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillia put up a jail today as security for a friend who is appealing a $100 fine.

The friend, Burnley S. Thurlow, 29, was fined for alleged violation of a state law regulating moving of buildings through the streets. When Thurlow appealed, Gillia put up the old county jail, which he owns, as security.

Occupational Hazard

Olympia, Wash.—"I'm ready to leave now," a man in the city jail informed the officer in charge.

Inasmuch as this is usually the case, the jailer passed it. As the protests became louder he conducted an investigation in the interests of peace and quiet.

Patrolman James Heath, it developed, had been in a hurry to get home for lunch and had failed to inform his successor the census taker was making a business call.

Back to the Races

Salt Lake City—As mayor, Ah Jenkins has his financial problems. So instead of spending $3,000 for a new engine for a pumper truck he donated to the fire department the motor from his racing car which hauled him to a record of 165.73 miles an hour for 1,000 miles.

The engine operates at some what slower speed, now, incidentally.

Too Old To Quit

Green Bay, Wis.—Louis Reno, who is 77 and prefers riding his bicycle to driving a car, will have to start paying for his pedalling. But he says he's been riding a bike for 20 years and won't stop now just because he needs a license under the new city licensing ordinance.

Right Hunch

Morris, Ill.—Farmer Wallie Foster, 65, had told his wife that the ensilage was beginning to slide and "if you find me missing from the barnyard, look in the silo."

When she returned from a visit, her husband was missing—so she went to the silo and found him trapped against the wall by ensilage. Only his head was clear and he had been unable to move for six hours, although uninjured. It took five men four hours to get him out.

Wins Divorce

Reno, Nev., April 6 (AP)—Mrs. Nancy Nicoll Pearson, prominent in New York city society, won an uncontested divorce on grounds of cruelty yesterday from Frederick Stark Pearson. Married October 4, 1935, the couple has a two-year-old daughter, Lucinda.

Public Health Meeting

HANGING TOGETHER

Britain and France now seem to be two nations with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one. And in this harmonious mood they have been lavish with pledges of cooperation not merely for the duration of the present war emergency, but forever. There is much talk on both sides of fitting their economic systems into each other, and even of merging their vast commerce and their colonial holdings, although no hint is given as to how that can be done.

It is grand to find such harmony in international relations, but realistic observers are likely to be rather Missourian about it. Individuals often act from motives of selfishness and pure good will, but nations hardly ever. Even when nations seem to be acting unselfishly, and think they are doing so, there is usually a very practical reason underneath the fine talk.

In temperament, language and character there is a natural gulf between the British and French much wider than the English Channel. We shall see what we shall see when the war is over. If the totalitarian states hang together as they are doing now, the democracies also will have to hang together, for the good old reason that made a bond for our American colonies when they formed their union—lest "they all hang separately." There could be no other reason for such harmony.

WHOSE WAR IS IT?

There is said to be a growing irritation in England, at the United States, because we show no signs of entering the war with Britain and France. An American correspondent says the people there ask more insistently "when we are coming in."

If we are inclined to be disagreeable, we might reply to such presumptuous demands by asking when the British themselves are going in. Except at sea, they haven't done much yet. For both British and French, the war hasn't really begun. The French have merely been holding the Maginot Line and other fronts, recently with British help, while both countries have professed to be making big preparations for active warfare.

Whatever the people may be thinking and saying in England about American participation in the war, the British government hasn't been saying much along that line. In fact, after Britain's war declaration it was frankly stated by responsible British statesmen that they believed our military participation would not be needed—that the Allies could handle the war themselves if they could buy enough war supplies here, and if we wanted to help, our function was primarily industrial.

We are actually working along that line now, and the American people naturally and self-respectingly hope that our participation can be restricted to such legitimate activities.

PAINLESS PREPAREDNESS

About that argument as to whether American airplane factories should go into mass production for war planes for the Allies, it is well to be practical.

Our army and navy experts say it's the best way to insure capacity production of up-to-date planes for ourselves, in case we are threatened with war. The factories and production methods and plane models will be ready, and we may be saved a billion dollars or so. General Hugh Johnson, who was in charge of supplies for the World War, agrees that such mass-production equipment and experience is better preparedness than thousands of finished planes that would quickly grow obsolete.

"If war threatens us," he says, "we will take all this newly developed factory capacity for our own use. This policy will speed our essential production, put us in the vanguard of invention and design and very greatly lower our costs."

BEN'S BANK BALANCE

What is an ordinary, modern American to do about keeping a proper balance in the bank if even our classic of thrift, the great Benjamin Franklin himself, couldn't do it?

It was Franklin, you remember, who published a famous little word called "Poor Richard's Almanac" which he filled with wise maxims about the danger of debt and the virtue of saving and always having money in the bank. But recently the early records of the pioneer Bank of North America, which Franklin patronized, have been made public by the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. The results, as regards the great moralist's business reputation, are shocking.

It appears that Franklin was so loose in his banking procedure that his account was overdrawn, on the average, at least three days a week. The president of the modern successor of that bank is quoted as saying that the name "Poor Richard" might have been derived from the state of the author's bank account.

This is very depressing. And yet it brings to the soul of many a modern citizen a strange, secret satisfaction.

JAPS MIGHT BE WRONG

An American correspondent writes from Tokyo that, after reading Secretary Hull's recent statement, Japanese officials think it doesn't mean an American embargo or any other change in American policy toward them. They have therefore advised the Japanese public to remain cool while the Tokyo government "calmly pursues its constructive policy toward China."

The Japanese seem to have an unusual gift for believing what they want to believe. America may be pursuing a "constructive policy toward China" of a very different kind from Japan's. It is quite possible that our soft-spoken but hardboiled secretary of state is cooking up something.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)
 CAUSES OF SINUS AILMENTS

Just a few years ago when a patient had a continuous head cold, or frequent head colds, it was often found that one or more of the sinuses was at fault. These little cavities or caverns adjoining the nose form a sounding box for the voice. The lining of these sinuses is a membrane that is always moist and warm so that, just as with the lining of the nose, outside air going into the lungs is warmed and moistened before reaching the lungs.

When a cold starts in the nose or throat, as the lining membrane of the little sinuses is the same as that of the nose and throat, the cold often extends to the sinuses.

However, headcolds are not due to coldness or dampness and so all sinus infection—sinusitis—is not due to colds or dampness. The treatment now for stuffed nose, painful cheeks and forehead due to pressure from mucous or pus does not often consist of surgical operations to give drainage. Instead, a study is made of the cause of sinusitis and treatment is given to remove the cause.

Dr. W. F. Gessler, Fort Wayne, in the Journal of the Indiana State Medical Association says: "As a result of a more thorough understanding of the action and uses of the nose and throat, we are able to learn the cause of the sinusitis and to treat the disease more successfully without the need of a surgical operation."

The four main causes for sinusitis are (a) infection, (b) allergy—being sensitive to certain substances—pollen, foods (c) disturbance of the glands—pituitary, thyroid, sex, (d) mechanical—enlarged turbinates or tonsils.

When infection is the cause, there is inflamed and swollen lining of the nose which obstructs the little openings of the sinuses and prevents the mucous or pus from draining out.

When the lining of the nose is pale and waterlogged in appearance with a thin mucous discharge and the presence of a certain type of blood cell, the cause of the sinusitis is usually allergy.

When the sinusitis is not due to infection or to allergy and there is not this certain type of blood cell, it is possible that disturbance of one or more glands is to blame.

The treatment outlined by Dr. Gessler calls for bulding up the resistance of the individual and removing the cause—infection, allergy, disturbance of ductless glands or correction of defects which are causing obstruction.

Allergy

Allergy or sensitiveness to various foods, plants and other substances is one of the causes of migraine, sinusitis, hay fever, eczema, intestinal upsets and other symptoms. Send for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet today. Ask for Allergy (No. 106), enclosing ten cents to cover cost of handling and mention the Kingston Daily Freeman. Public works board decided to purchase McVey's Field on Delaware avenue for $1,800.

Under an ordinance adopted by the Common Council, Chief of Police J. Allan Wood, was appointed movie censor in Kingston.

April 6, 1930—James Massey was dead and his brother, Thomas, was in the county jail, as the result of a fatal shooting at Milton. Both men were negroes.

The Rev. John J. Waldron, C. Ss. R., of Mt. St. Alphonsus, Esopus, was guest speaker at communion breakfast of Knights of Columbus at Stuyvesant Hotel.

Mrs. Brazil Hasbrouck died at her home in Rosendale.

Daniel M. Hasbrouck died at his home in Willow.

Heavy rain fell here.

Hudson River Steamboat Company adopted policy of handling freight only, no passengers being carried.

Vienna, (Fp)—Shop signs in foreign languages, especially French and English, fell into disrepute with city authorities. All Viennese newspapers, obviously on command from higher-ups, started a violent campaign against what some papers termed the "nuisance of foreign language signs."

French and English signs, "Tailleur" or "Tailor" are frequent. The papers' argument for the removal of these signs and their substitution by German ones is that "neither in Paris nor in London nor in other cities in France or England will German language signs be found in shops of any kind." This drive is reminiscent of a similar campaign at the outbreak of the World War in 1914, when, within a few weeks, French and English designations of shops and names of old-established restaurants and amusement places disappeared.

Roosevelt and Hull Have Won Notable Victory in Putting Trade Extension Through Both Houses

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1940)

Washington, April 6—President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull have won a notable victory by being able to put through both houses of Congress the bill to continue the making of reciprocal trade agreements for a period of three years.

More than any other measure in the last year the bill was given the full support of the President, who saw one senator after the other in an effort to persuade them to stand by the trade treaty policies.

The Republican vote in the Senate was solidly against the proposal, just as it was preponderantly negative in the House, so that for campaign purposes the issue remains what it always has been—a tariff controversy that will make its local appeal.

Defections from the Democratic side can be attributed in no small part to local tariff considerations. Senators from western states producing wool, metals, sugar and meat products felt that they had to desert the administration. This was particularly true of those up for re-election this year.

The fight was devoid of acrimony, while the decision in the Senate was close and at one time too close for the administration's comfort, the argument was entirely of the sort that has been heard when tariff bills in the past were up for consideration.

Incidentally, a substantial part of the help which came to the administration was from senators who represent states that benefit from the trade agreements.

The southern cotton farmers are eager of course for more markets abroad through trade agreements, and this influenced the Democrats from the south.

In the north, the automobile industry, for instance, favored the pact because the trade agreements have been used to help increased automobile exports. The department of state has not hesitated to make known the benefits that have accrued to certain sections of the country.

The real importance of the extension of the trade agreement power is, however, not at all in the domain of tariff changes for the present because, with the war on in Europe, the making of new trade agreements is perhaps at a standstill anyway. But the fact that the President and secretary of state were supported on what they consider an international issue is of real consequence abroad.

The best way to measure the meaning of the trade agreement triumph is to imagine what would have been said in the chancelleries of Europe if the bill had lost. Existing agreements might have been considered valueless and there might have been a tendency to impose new quotas and new restrictions on American exports on the theory that the existing agreements would soon lapse anyway.

The most effective argument for the retention of the trade agreement power was the desire of the administration to retain authority to deal with the uncertain situations arising in trade throughout the world. The present law gives the executive branch of the government bargaining power and leverage which is of paramount importance when it is considered that foreign governments can act overnight to make abrupt changes in trade arrangements affecting American commerce.

The whole trade agreement program originated with Secretary Hull. For a while the President was lukewarm about it, but gradually he began to grow more sympathetic, until his ardent championship of the cause by a message to Congress early this year revealed him as a wholehearted supporter of the idea of reduction of trade barriers. Reciprocity was at one time a Republican policy, but President Taft's efforts to consummate a trade program with Canada in 1911 was defeated in the Senate by members of his own party.

The Republican platform committee headed by Glenn Frank recognized the principle of trade agreements of a reciprocal character, but declared that the agreements should be approved by both houses of Congress. The opposition centered on the proposal to make the agreements subject to Senate ratification, but the administration successfully fought the line of attack by pointing to the many provisions of the tariff law which the Republicans themselves had enacted whereby the executive was delegated to proclaim duties within prescribed limits without congressional approval. As for the so-called favored-nation clause treatment which the department of state has been giving to countries which do not discriminate against the United States, the Hoover administration supported that principle very forcefully, too.

On the whole the vote on the trade agreement controversy has been a straight Republican and Democratic vote, with a few high protection Democrats veering to the Republican side. But the Republicans will gain very little from the issue politically because in the very states where they had expected to gain votes by their attitude will be found Democrats in Congress who voted as did the Republican members.

The victory will tend to enhance the prestige of the secretary of state, who has put his energies into the trade agreement program because of a fundamental belief that it will be helpful in the restoration and maintenance of peace and that it represents an effective way of combatting economic nationalism.

CREEK LOCKS

Creek Locks, April 5—Mr. and Mrs. Kruger of Kingston spent Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hennessey.

Mrs. A. Hawley, who has a position at Middletown, was at her home here recently.

Betty Mowle has returned back to school after being home with a cold.

Martin Lynch is doing some work for Donnie McEvoy.

Mr. and Mrs. Boomhower and children spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hennessey.

Mrs. A. Mowle and son, Ralph, and Mrs. C. McLaren and son, Joseph and James, were in Kingston Wednesday on business.

The P.T.A. had its meeting Monday evening at the school house.

Mr. and Mrs. Ackert of Rhinebeck called on many of their friends in Creek Locks recently.

Mrs. Machino, Mrs. Hussman made a trip to Kingston Wednesday.

Higher Alimony Sought in Court

Elda L. Terry of Cobleskill asks the Supreme Court, with Justice Murray presiding, to increase her alimony from $65 a month because her husband has received an increase in pay. The husband, George E. Terry, oil tank truck driver of Newburgh, in turn asks that the alimony be decreased because, he alleged, he has been married a second time and now has a wife and child to support.

The couple were former residents of Greene county and a divorce decree was granted in 1934 and became absolute in 1935. At that time Mrs. Terry was allowed $45 a month alimony for her support and that of her three children. At that time the defendant was being paid $31 a week but in September, 1937, his wage was increased to $39.90 and in March, 1938, an increase of $20 a month was granted the wife, bringing the alimony to $65 a month.

The defendant claims in 1939 he lost his job and after being out of work a short time was re-employed at $35.25 a week and he asks that in view of this fact that the present payment of $65 be reduced. An increase was granted when his wage was increased and his counsel asked that the payment be reduced now that he has taken a decrease in pay.

In 1936 the defendant married and now has a wife and child to support in Newburgh and he claimed he was unable to pay $65 a month and support his present wife and child. The first wife lives in Cobleskill with her father and is unable to do any work. The children are 10, eight and six years of age and require her constant attention.

Plaintiff was given until Monday to file replying affidavits to defendant's answer.

Murray Is Given 5 to 10-Year Term

New City, N. Y., April 6 (AP)—Assemblyman Lawrence J. Murray, Jr., Rockland county Democrat, was sentenced late yesterday to 5 to 10 years in Sing Sing prison for his theft of more than $49,000 from a mentally incompetent client.

The 30-year-old attorney faced a possible 120-year term on the 27 counts in the indictment charging first and second degree grand larceny.

Sentence was imposed by County Judge John A. McKenna, who presided at the two-weeks trial. Murray was convicted Thursday. The victim of his larcenies was Miss May A. V. Dunnigan, now a patient in the county hospital for the insane.

'Canada in War' At the Broadway

What conditions in the United States might be if this country were in war is portrayed in the picture, "Canada at War," starting today at the Broadway Theatre, filmed by The March of Time.

The movie, showing the whole story of Canada's war efforts among 11 million people, points out that the most significant part of the Dominion's activities is the growth of the Royal Air Force, training 35,000 pupils for the British Empire.

Coast defense is also depicted showing fortifications against invasion by sea, precautions against espionage, military censorship, activities of the Canadian Legion, similar to the American Legion, and the plans for raising funds amounting to more than $200,000,000.

Koht said that orders had been given to fire upon any such planes which refused to submit to regulations.

Norway already has issued 21 protests against planes flying across her territory, Koht asserted. Five of these protests have been sent to Germany, 10 to Britain and six to Soviet Russia.

Koht, discussing Finland's position and proposals for a defense pact between Finland, Norway and Sweden, said that all decisions regarding such an alliance would be postponed until relations between Helsinki and Moscow are improved.

Ellenville Mayor And Board Want Salaries for Jobs

Ellenville's "Village Fathers" have, apparently, decided that it is time that their services to the public were rewarded with something more substantial than a "well done, good and faithful servant."

At the annual meeting of the village board, for reorganization, held Monday night a resolution was passed which provides that the mayor shall receive a salary of $400 a year and each of the four trustees $200 each.

Comment by one of the village papers says that the intent of the resolution was to have the schedule become effective the first of this month, but questions whether that can be, legally. Reference is made to a law passed in 1927, providing for payment of salaries to members of village boards in villages of the second class, which, it is stated, provides that a resolution fixing salaries under the law shall take effect the first Monday of the first month following the succeeding village election. It is stated, also, that the action is subject to a referendum, if demanded.

Fire Destroys Two-Story House

Shortly after 5 o'clock Friday afternoon fire destroyed the two-story frame house on Linderman avenue extension. Firemen from Wiltwyck station responded to a call for aid, but the fire had gathered such headway that it was impossible to save the house.

The house, owned by David Scully, was located on a cross road between Linderman avenue extension and the Boulevard. Both house and contents were destroyed.

The fire department that afternoon was called to the house at 73 West Pierpont street, where a studio couch in the apartments of Arthur Ahl on the second floor was damaged by fire.

Shortly after 1 o'clock Friday afternoon the fire department was called for the first grass fire of the season. The fire was on Peter street, off Andrew street.

Chloe Confounds Officials in West

post mortem examination disclosed that all three children—Daphne, 10; Deborah Ann, 7; and Marquis, 3—died of skull fractures.

Lying on Mattress
Homer Cross, deputy police chief, said Chloe told him her mother was lying on a mattress which had been dragged into the hallway, and that her mother told her to get a razor.

"Chloe said she got a razor blade from the cupboard and gave it to her mother," Cross related. "I asked her if she saw her mother slash her wrists, and she said: 'No I didn't look at it.'"

In spite of the autopsy surgeon's findings Chloe still maintains her original and oft-repeated story: That after her mother had attacked the other children, she, at her mother's request, beat on Mrs. Davis' head until the handle of the hammer broke.

"I believe that in the main Chloe is telling the truth," concluded Dr. Paul De River, police psychiatrist. "Her actions on the day of the slayings were those of an abnormal child. Any normal child would have screamed and run from the house when she awoke, as she says she did, to find her brother and sisters dead and her mother apparently dead."

"My observations of Chloe in the last two days mark her, in my opinion, as cool, collected and firm in her opinions. She even corrects her father on points of the tragedy."

Edwards said a petition would be filed Monday to have Chloe made a ward of the juvenile court.

An inquest into the slayings was set for next Tuesday morning.

Aged Scientist Invents Secret Signal Lights

LONDON.—At 90 a man might reasonably think his usefulness to his country in war time had ended.

But Sir Ambrose Fleming, famous scientist, has invented at that age, a simple spy-proof lamp for signaling from ships, the signals of which can only be read by the specially equipped receiver for whom they are intended.

Until this invention anyone could read the continuous signals from ships in British naval bases and harbors—if they knew the code.

The secret of Sir Ambrose's lamp is "polarized" light. Light consists of vibrations. In ordinary light these can bound in all directions. Polarized light looks the same to the naked eye, but the vibrations are confined to a single plane. The projector sends out a beam of light. For the dots and dashes it changes momentarily to ordinary light. The naked eye cannot detect the difference. But the special receiving instrument filters the polarized light and makes it appear darker and of a different color. On top of this the message stands out in separate flashes of white.

IT WON'T DO, LEW!—Those chaps, boots, gun and hat help Lew Jenkins, lightweight challenger from Sweetwater, Tex., demonstrate his fondness for Texas, but he'll have to shed the outfit for his May bout with Lou Ambers.

LUXEMBOURG SENDS ENVOY—For the first time since a brief period after the world war, the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg has full diplomatic relations with U. # LITTLE SPITFIRE

By Jean Randall

YESTERDAY: One by one Brenda meets the other occupants of the Bohemian boardinghouse; red-headed Isobel Burke, who thinks she's in love with Mac; good-looking Eric Mason; and Adelaide Rostetter, the absent-minded landlady.

Chapter Three Plans For A Party

"THE last of the Burnhams come home," exclaimed Adelaide. "The Street will want to celebrate it."

"The Street?" Brenda looked up from her coffee cup inquiringly. "Why should the Street want to celebrate? . . . You mean this street?"

"The Shortest Street in the city," was Adelaide's impressive reply. "Surely your dear aunt has told you about it!"

Brenda nodded, the dimples coming and going in her smooth cheeks.

"But she didn't tell me my appearance would be the signal for a celebration!"

"It'll probably be a garden party at the VanNess's," Eric suggested. "They have the biggest lawn. Or perhaps Dr. Wilson's daughter will make it a tea instead," he added hopefully.

"Or both," was Isobel's pessimistic opinion. "With perhaps open

Brenda sat up, electrified. "You don't mean the cartoonist?"

"I believe he does draw," was the cold answer. "And certainly he has very odd persons visiting him." She cleared her throat. "We try to forget he lives here, Brenda, my dear. He's certainly no credit to The Street!"

"But why?" He's a famous artist, he—

"His private life isn't all it should be," responded her landlady primly.

It was from Isobel that Brenda learned what was to be known of the cartoonist. The Street having called in relays upon its visitor, or, as Dr. Wilson put it gallantly, "its distinguished returning daughter," Brenda was beginning to sort her impressions of the people she had hitherto known only through Aunt Anne's descriptions.

She found them curiously different from her preconceived ideas. Dr. Wilson himself, for example, far from being the tall and impressive physician who had figured so largely in the chronicles of The Street, was a shrunken little man in clothes too large for him, and with a voice which gave forth a squeak instead of the boom Brenda had expected.

His daughter was plainly one of the managing sort, reminding her father of a call he had to make, warning him against driving too house at Judge Harper's thrown in." She put another lump of sugar into her cup as though to fortify herself against so much social activity.

"It's certainly been a day!" sighed Brenda.

"But—why?" Brenda looked about in bewilderment. Her hostess and the hovering maid appeared to be the only persons pleased at the prospect. Mac looked resigned, Eric frankly gloomy, and Isobel prepared to believe the worst. "Why should they entertain for me—celebrate my coming? They don't know me. I've never been here before in my life."

Isobel enlightened her. "The Street is a community in itself. A sort of club in a way. If you've ever lived here, you have a life membership. If—as in your case—one of your ancestors was an original settler, you're a charter, active, and honorary member, all at the same time. In thirty years only two of the ten houses have ever changed hands; this one and the last one on the other side of the street. That house—"

"Ahem!" exclaimed Mrs. Rostetter loudly. "It's just as Isobel says, Brenda dear; you belong to us here on The Street, and we must do something to mark your homecoming. I'll telephone Maud Wilson right after breakfast. In the meantime—"

"In the meantime," Isobel interrupted, "I've got to go. Miss Burnham, if it would amuse you, I'd like to take you down to the studio some day. Eric, going with me or walking?"

"Walking today, thank you!"

"Isobel has a car," the mistress of the house explained. "She and Eric often drive downtown together."

"And Mac?" Brenda inquired, sending a side-long glance toward the advertising man.

Adelaide said innocently: "Oh, Mac never will ride with Isobel, he prefers walking! And she's a good driver, too, Eric says."

Mac smiled and went on with his breakfast composedly.

All But One

AFTER the three wage-earners had gone, Mrs. Rostetter placed herself before the telephone and called, one by one, all the families who lived on The Shortest Street. All, that is, save one. Brenda directed her attention to this omission.

"Don't the Minturns still live in the last house on the other side of the street? Aunt Anne has told me about Miss Mamie Minturn—" Adelaide's soft mouth pursed itself disapprovingly.

"The Minturns sold their home three years ago. A man by the name of Saltus lives there now—" fast, giving Brenda advice about adjusting herself to a climate to which she was not accustomed.

Hugh Saltus.

"What's Wrong?"

"It's certainly been a day!" the girl sighed as she went upstairs with Isobel. "So many people have called, and I've had such a time trying to reconcile them as they are to the pictures Aunt Anne painted of them. Poor dear, she forgot that twenty years makes changes. Come in a moment, Isobel, can't you?"

Isobel complied, dropping wearily into a low rocker.

"It's been a day for me, too. We're getting ready for a recital at the Conservatory, and all my pupils are practicing for it. There's not one embryo musician among 'em. What I've suffered since nine this morning!"

"I suppose so," Brenda said sympathetically. "I should think it would be simply Hades to teach the unmusical. Isobel, what's wrong with Hugh Saltus?"

Isobel stopped rocking. "How do you mean—what's wrong? His health is perfect."

"Mrs. Rostetter says—well, Adelaide, then—she asked me to call her Adelaide—that his private life isn't what it should be. She was so stern and disapproving about him I didn't dare question her further." Her dimples flashed delightedly.

Isobel leaned forward. "Brenda, tell me something! I've read that you can acquire 'em surgically—dimples. I mean! Do you believe it? Would you advise it? They say that simply nicking a bit of flesh out and letting the scar pucker—"

"You goose!" Brenda laughed outright. "I think it would disfigure you, truly I do! And why on earth do you want dimples? If you knew what a disadvantage they are! Nobody takes one seriously—"

"And how heavenly that would be!" was the fervent rejoinder. "I'd sell my soul for just one dimple like yours. But getting back to Hugh Saltus—"

"Yes, let's do! Did he run away with another man's wife, or did he embezzle funds from his bank?"

"I don't know quite what he did," she replied, the other girl thoughtfully. "He arrived with a wife—everybody knows that. We all called on her in due form. Then she disappeared. I believe Hugh said at first she'd gone away for a visit; then when some months went by and she didn't return, he simply changed the subject when her name was mentioned. Adelaide thinks he was unkind to her, and she couldn't endure life with him any longer."

Call them "The Good Old Times" if you wish but most of us were not able to afford an automobile then.

Man—It's a terrible thing. I sold my car and mortgaged my house and land—all to send my son to the State University. And all he does there is smoke, drink, and take girls out to parties.

Friend—Oh, so you are regretting it?

Man—Certainly. I should have gone myself.

Found: The Perfect Wife

Her husband's never right on time; but he has learned the uses

Of all the well-known modern—and some ancient—good excuses.

He's had sick friends; and been detained when big deals went amiss.

Good prospects dropped in suddenly, to talk of that and this; He's had car trouble; that took hours before it was corrected; And conferences—until dawn—have even been injected.

He's used all alibis that men give wives, when they deceive 'em; But think of this: The lovely part is that she does believe 'em.

Maid—Were there any washouts along the highway after the cloudburst?

Mistress—Oh, yes; my sister was parked in a car with one and I was parked with another.

Accidents don't happen—they are caused.

Here's the evidence: Husband—Do you think it right to buy an automobile on the installment plan?

Wife—Sure. 16,000,000 people can't be wrong.

15 years and am a most experienced driver.

Victim—Well, I've been walking for over 40 years, so I'm hardly a beginner.

A British Columbia somnambulist drove 19 miles in a car before he was awakened. No doubt other drivers thought he was awake.

It would be better: Helen—I feel ashamed every time I see the family wash out in the yard.

Irma—No wonder! Why don't they go inside?

As riches and honor forsake a man, we discover him to be a fool, but nobody could find it out in his prosperity.

Howard—What did you do with my shirt?

Charles—I sent it to the laundry.

Howard—Great guns, man! The whole history of Europe was outlined on the cuffs.

We read that a young woman can drive an automobile better than a man. Well, then, why doesn't she?

Agent—I forgot to mention that in the house in the country you are buying there are two very old stained glass windows.

Mr. Newrich—That won't matter. If they are stained too bad to be cleaned I can put in some new ones.

While we don't have minute-men in this country as we did in colonial days, we have a great many "wait-a-minute" men and women, girls and boys. The first were for protection. The last serve mostly for aggravation.

Jack went to the stable, to hire a horse.

Horseman—How long do you want it?

Jack—Give me the longest one you've got. Five of us are going.

Don't be impatient: Rome wasn't Mussolinized in a day. Clipped.

Cause of Fires Traced to Youth

An investigation by Troopers Metzger and Baker of the B. C. I. has traced fires started in several bungalows on March 21 to an 11-year-old Marlborough boy, the officers state.

Windows were broken and shades set on fire in three bungalows owned by John Manion, near West Marlborough and in one of them a bed mattress was set on fire. The shades burned out without causing further damage and in the other case the fire did not extend beyond the mattress, which was on an iron bed.

Resentment at having been chased off the property on several occasions is said to have been back of the boy's act. He probably will be arraigned later in Children's court.

Legion Contest Winner Is Named

Americanism, reverence for the Constitution and a love for the Bill of Rights, found its fullest expression in the spirited presentation of the contestants in the Legion oratorical competition, the officials said today.

Facing a gathering that filled the seating capacity of the New Paltz Central High School last night, Dr. R. G. Cunningham, principal of the school, introduced the participants who were warmly received by their parents, friends and the invited public.

The judges, members of the faculty of New Paltz Normal, were Mrs. Long, Miss Rebecca McKenna, A. B. Bennett, Roland G. Will and Arnold Verduin have after due deliberation chosen as the first winner, Kenneth Snyder of New Paltz and the second winner in the contest, John Walker of Marlborough.

Harry L. Kirchner, commander of Ulster County Legion, was called on to make the presentation of the Legion medals awarded to the two winners. He praised in eloquent terms the spirit of the contestants and invited the public to support the Legion program so that educational work of this type among the youth may be encouraged.

Jack Rabin, chairman on Americanism for the county Legion organization was introduced to the assembly and enthusiastically received.

Major Gifford Hallock in charge of the oratorical contest, received the thanks and appreciation from commander Kirchner in behalf of the Legion and the public for his efforts.

The winner, Kenneth Snyder of New Paltz, will now be eligible to meet in competition the next zone competitors in the race for the Legion scholarship of $4,000 awarded by Eddie Cantor, star of stage, screen and radio.

The following were the contestants and their alternates:

Representing Walkill, Ruth Arnold of Modena; Frances Dible of Plattkill; representing Saugerties, Clair Smith and Raymond Tuttle of Saugerties; representing New Paltz, Kenneth Snyder of New Paltz and Robert Howard of Rosendale; representing Highland, Joseph Crucilla and Louis Palmer of Highland; representing Marlborough, John Walker and Lillian Daves of Marlborough.

Commander Laceson Thomas of the Sullivan-Safer Post No. 176, of New Paltz, was host of the evening.

Will Try Out New Traffic Plan

Chief of Police Charles Phinney said today that it was planned to try out proposed new traffic regulations in the uptown business district within a few days.

Proposed traffic changes are the making of one-way traffic streets of Wall street from Main to North Front streets, and on Fair street. Traffic will proceed in one direction over Wall street toward North Front street, and southbound traffic will use Fair street.

These new traffic regulations will be tried out first to see how the plan will work before the common council will be asked to take official action.

It is also proposed to make East Strand a one-way street between Hasbrouck avenue and Broadway, while Ferry street will continue to remain open to traffic in both directions.

Yesterday Mayor Heiselman, Corporation Counsel John M. Cashin and the police chief made a trip to Poughkeepsie to study the workings of the parking meter system now in effect in that city.

Chief Phinney also expects to meet with the business men groups in the central and downtown sections of the city to ascertain their sentiments in regard to parking meters.

Anna Swift Asks Her License Again

Anna Swift, New York city physiotherapist, who had her license revoked some time ago following the conviction of a crime, that of maintaining a house of ill-fame, appeared in supreme court here on Friday and asked Justice Murray to grant her an order of review of the action taken by the Board of Regents of the State of New York in an effort to have her license reinstated.

Counsel for Anna Swift argued that the Commissioner of Education had no power to revoke the license under Section 1264 of the Education Law since that section applied to "physicians" over which the Board has jurisdiction. He argued that a physiotherapy license did not permit the holder to practice medicine and one could only administer to a person on prescription of a licensed physician. The charge having been brought under Section 1264, and that section relating to physicians only, counsel argued that the revocation of the license of the New York woman was void and he asked an order of review to go before the Board of Regents and have the license restored.

Papers in the case showed that Anna Swift had been convicted of the crime following a raid on her apartment by police officers and that following her conviction the Board of Regents revoked her license under the provision of Section 1264. Counsel held that the question was one never before raised and held that the section applied only to physicians, the defendant in the present case not being a physician he held the section did not apply. Decision reserved.

Sports' Night at Auditorium Here

What are claimed to be some of the finest motion pictures of sport life ever made will be shown by Martin K. Bovey, widely known sportsman, at the sportsman's night in the municipal auditorium on Tuesday evening, April 16, under the auspices of the Ulster County Fish and Game Protective Association.

The Bovey's pictures are much sought by sports clubs, and the local association was fortunate in being able to have them shown here that night. The pictures are in technicolor and will be shown on a beaded screen, 8 by 6 1/2 feet in size.

Mr. Bovey has recently completed a tour, which included many of the largest colleges in the central part of the United States. He will show first a short reel made on the fishing preserve of Edward R. Hewitt on Neversink river with Mr. Hewitt, George LaBranche and Dick Hunt as the characters, this will be followed by a picture of hunting and fishing on the Albany river in Canada. This picture was made during a 600-mile canoe trip on this and adjoining waters.

Nelson W. Snyder, president of the local association said today that the pictures would be of interest to all interested in sports and fishing.

Solemn Mass to Be Sung For Rev. M. F. Fitzgerald

A solemn anniversary Mass of requiem for the late Rev. Michael F. Fitzgerald will be offered on Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock at St. Mary's Church. This Mass could not be celebrated earlier because of the Easter season.

At the time of his death on March 20, 1939, Father Fitzgerald was chaplain of the Benedictine Hospital, where he labored for seven years, bringing the comforts of religion to sufferers and endearing himself to patients of all faiths by his ready wit and charming personality.

The celebrant of the Mass will be the Rev. Austin V. Carey, Father Fitzgerald's successor as chaplain at the Benedictine Hospital, who will be assisted by priests of the Ulster-Sullivan deanery.

Will Salute Hurley

Old Hurley will break into national prominence Monday morning when the village will be featured from station WABC, New York, on the Phil Cook program between 7 and 8 o'clock. As a part of the program will be a sketch of Hurley village which served as a haven for the villagers of Kingston back in Revolutionary War days when the British burned the village of Kingston.

Solar Phenomenon To Be Seen Sunday

New York, April 6 (AP)—A fiery ring in the heavens, caused by an annular eclipse of the sun, will move across southern and southwestern states tomorrow, offering this country its first glimpse of the phenomenon in 75 years.

The full phase will be visible along a 150-mile belt from the big bend section of Texas to Jacksonville, Fla., provided the weather is clear. Forecasts indicate cloudiness over most of the region.

Elsewhere in the United States and North America, with the exception of Alaska, only a partial eclipse will be seen.

Because the moon's distance from the earth will be too great to effect a complete blackout or "total" eclipse of the sun, the "ring" eclipse will result. Ninety-three per cent of the sun's surface will be covered when the moon reaches the point of concentricity. To the casual observer in the central phase zone the effect will be only a lessening of sunlight and possibly a paling from a yellow to a greenish cast.

Through smoked glasses or an over-exposed film negative, however, the sight will be that of a flaming ring, with huge billows shooting outward from the sun's edge. It will last four to six minutes.

The last stellar spectacle of this sort in the United States occurred in 1865. The next is not due until 1994. Astronomers are interested keenly because no photographic record of this type of eclipse ever has been made.

Traveling from west to east at a 2,000-mile an hour clip, the eclipse starts at 4:05 p. m. in San Francisco and can be seen in New York at 5:05 p. m. Both times eastern standard.

Bus Lines to Use Crown St. Terminal

Beginning Sunday morning all bus lines from Kingston to points around the county will once more make the Crown street terminal their point of arrival and departure. This will include the Eagle bus line, running to Ellenville and the Mountain View Coach Lines, which up to now have continued to use the North Front street terminal.

The latter property is to be used as a site for a new A. & P. super market. It is understood that the terminal office at that place will remain open for the present, at least.

James Belefes, who will open the restaurant at the Crown street terminal, following extensive repairs and improvements, said that he expected to have the place ready for business about May 1.

Lines using the Crown street terminal, in addition to the two named, are the Ferraro line to Saugerties, New Paltz line, Rosendale line, Pine Hill and Woodstock lines, Creek Locks and the Acker line to East Kingston.

Four Taken to City

Frank Melia, Joe DeRosa and Amateo Santora of Brooklyn and Anthony Teri of Highland, who have been held in the county jail awaiting bail since they were arrested several days ago following a raid on an alleged still near Tucker's Corners, were taken to New York city this morning by a deputy United States marshal, when it became apparent they would be unable to produce the required bail. A fifth member of the party had given bail.

Schneider's Forces Seeking Show Cause Order Today On Why Ballots Were Void

Continuing their battle to gain control of the American Labor Party in Ulster county the forces of Jacob J. Schneider, known as the "regulars," were seeking today an order to show cause in an effort to claim certain votes cast at the primary which were rejected as "void."

Moses L. Kove of Hurleyville after a visit to the Board of Elections and a review of the official canvass sought an order to show cause from Justice Harry E. Schirick why the vote should not be reviewed and some seven or eight votes which have been declared "void" counted for the "regulars."

In a recent court action the names of the so-called "regulars" which had been named on designating petitions for office to be voted for at primary election, were stricken from the ballot and only the names of "progressives" were allowed to stand.

On primary day a write-in campaign was instituted by the "regulars" and at first it was believed the campaign had been successful. However the official canvass of the vote caused several ballots to be discarded and the "progressives" whose names appeared printed on the ballot won out. There were 32 votes canvassed for the "progressives," while two of the Schneider "regulars" received 28 votes and three received 29 votes. The official canvass defeated the "regulars" in the write-in campaign and Mr. Kove now seeks an order to show cause why certain votes which were discarded as void should not be counted.

The application must be made within 10 days after primary. Mr. Kove told a Freeman reporter this morning that he believed at least seven or eight votes should be allowed and if allowed the "regulars" would win out over the progressives.

His order was prepared for signature of the court and the matter was to come before Justice Schirick at 12:30 o'clock.

Results in Recent Primary Election

The Board of Elections has completed canvass of votes cast at the primary election Tuesday last and announced the following results:

Republican
District delegates to national convention. Total vote 2,413. Philip Elting, 1,212; Fred C. Beagle, 1,201.

Knauth Gets Break Due to Prominence In Alimony Default

Because of the prominence of the two families involved, Attorney Charles de la Vergne said, yesterday, he did not want to have defendant Bert Knauth put in jail for failure to pay alimony.

Appearing for Frances Burgevin Knauth, Mr. de la Vergne complained that difficulty was being encountered in getting action for separation to the court because of numerous changes of counsel. The attorney asked Justice William Murray at special term yesterday to make an order compelling the defendant to pay temporary alimony and counsel fees as directed.

A weekly allowance of $40 has not been paid and counsel told the court that it was impossible to get action because of changes in appearance for the defendant, Judge Augustus Shufeldt, who recently came into the case, asked for time to reply.

The motion before the court was for an order compelling the defendant to pay. Mr. Shufeldt held that the case had not been noticed for trial but could have been and asked for time to answer the complaint. The request was granted.

Murray Signs Moose Petition

An order was signed Friday by Justice Murray granting the application of the trustees of Kingston Lodge, No. 970, Loyal Order of Moose to execute and deliver two bonds and mortgages, each in the sum of $1,500 on real property owned by the lodge.

Michael DeCicco, Fortunato Castiglione and William Robertson, trustees, petitioned the court for permission to mortgage the Moose Home at 26 Cedar street and use the funds so derived to make alterations and improvements to the premises at 574 Broadway, formerly known as Pythian Hall, which has been leased by the lodge for lodge room, assembly and social hall purposes.

Raymond J. Mino appeared for the application.

In granting the application the court allows the giving of a $1,500 first mortgage to the Kingston Savings Bank to be amortized at the rate of $50 each quarter and also issuing of a second mortgage to a private individual in the same sum for a period of five years.

The order has been entered in the county clerk's office.

West Side Group Sets Up Budget At Port Jervis

Directors of the West of the Hudson Association, at the monthly meeting at Hotel Minisink in Port Jervis on Thursday, unanimously adopted a $5,000 budget. The budget provides $1,770 for operating expenses and secretarial fees. The remaining $3,230 will be devoted to publicizing the nine-county area served by the association.

Various county organizations such as Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, fraternal organizations and business organizations will be invited to unite with the association, paying a membership fee of $10. Individual memberships would be a dollar.

Walter Schwartz of Glen Spey and Albert Kurt of Kingston discussed problems of obtaining members for the organization and various questions that prospective members might ask. Mr. Evans then distributed copies of a small pamphlet containing 51 answers to possible questions, urging the directors to study its contents.

William Salvage of New York, advertising representative for the New York Sun, spoke briefly of the possibilities for development of America as a resort and travel country. He reported that the resort business was America's third largest industry and said that the war in Europe provided "a golden opportunity" for this country to benefit from the estimated $37,000,000 yearly spent for European travel.

Their Engagements Announced

MISS MARY BOYD

Miss Mary Elizabeth Boyd, left, whose engagement to James J. Carroll of Riverdale, New York city, has been announced by her brother, A. J. Boyd, of 79 Orchard street. Miss Boyd is a graduate of New Paltz Normal School and is a member of the faculty of School No. 3. Mr. Carroll is a graduate of Fordham University and Fordham Law School. He is an attorney in the law firm of Collins and Carroll and president of the Edward T. Carroll and Son, Building Supplies. Their wedding will take place in August.

MISS HERMINE LAWATSCH

The engagement of Miss Hermine Lawatsch, right, to Kenneth W. MacFadyen, son of Mr. and Mrs. James MacFadyen of Worcester, Mass., has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil H. Lawatsch, of 109 East Chester street. Miss Lawatsch attends Cornell University. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, national social sorority. Mr. MacFadyen completed his undergraduate and graduate work at Middlebury College. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon, national social fraternity and is at present an industrial chemist with the Warner Chemical Corp. in Carteret, N. J.

Presbyterian League Meeting

The annual meeting of the Service League of the First Presbyterian Church was held Tuesday afternoon, April 2, in the Ladies' parlor of the Ramsey Memorial Building. Devotional services were led by Mrs. C. Van Valkenburgh.

Annual reports of the officers and standing committee chairmen gave evidence that the league has completed a most successful year of service to the church and community.

Notice was received of the 61st annual meeting of the North River Presbyterian Society on April 11, at the Bethlehem Presbyterian Church, Salisbury Mills.

The speakers' list includes the Rev. John Scott King, moderator, the Rev. D. S. Haynes, clerk of Presbytery, and Miss Dorothy Ellerton, of Arizona, who will speak on "The Navajo."

The Book Study group of the Service League will hold its next regular meeting Tuesday evening, April 16, at the home of Mrs. Fred Greene on O'Neil street.

A supper will be served on Thursday, April 25, with Mrs.

Leon Clark and Mrs. Harford Shultis as co-chairmen.

Members of the league will cooperate in the drive of the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, and will as usual participate in the annual sale for the blind to be held May 15-19.

The retiring president, Mrs. Cora E. Drake, was presented with a basket of spring flowers by the officers and members in appreciation of her devotion and efforts to promote the welfare of the Service League.

Mt. Holyoke Alumnae Meeting

The annual meeting of the Hudson Valley Mount Holyoke Club will be held Saturday, April 20, Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock at the Storm King Arms, route 9-W, Cornwall-on-Hudson. Miss Ruth E. Conklin of Poughkeepsie will give an account of her experiences as alumnae counselor. The annual election of officers will take place. All former students of Mount Holyoke College are invited. Several members from Kingston are planning to attend.

Amann-Brown

Miss Myrtle Brown and Karl Amann, both of Albany, were united in marriage on April 3, by Judge Matthew V. Cahill in his office on Fair street. The witnesses were Corinne D. Cahill and Vivian Voight.

Mendelssohn Club Concert Heard By Capacity Audience

With the distinction and intelligent interpretation that have been noted in their many previous performances, the Mendelssohn Club gave evident pleasure to last evening's capacity audience in the high school auditorium. The members were directed by Dr. Elmer Tidmarsh and accompanied by Samuel D. Scudder, Jr., artistic and reliable accompanist of the club.

The club gave the program of difficult selections admirably and was happiest in its group of cowboy songs; "March of the Toys" by Victor Herbert, "Land of Hope and Glory" by Elgar and "Lullaby" by Brahms, the latter of which was given as an encore after the second group.

The balance for the most part was equal, the members deriving as much pleasure from singing as did the audience in listening. Guest soloist was Dorothy Baker, soprano, whose poised and gracious manner delighted her audience. She made her most favorable impressions in the last group of songs which included "Music of the Spring" by Bransen, "Don't Talk to Me of Spring" by Young, "And So, Goodbye" by Charles, "Will-o'-the-Wisp" by Spross and "Sunlight Waltz" by Ware, as well as the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria."

Miss Baker was accompanied by Dr. Charles Gilbert Spross, honorary member of the club. The Spross number, "Will-o'-the-Wisp" was repeated for the benefit of the club members and each time was given a delightful rendition. Dr. Spross, also appeared in a solo number and in his usual magnificent manner played the "Polonaise in E Major" by Liszt and was recalled for an encore. Without the appearance of Dr. Spross on a Mendelssohn, the evening would not be complete.

Following the program the annual dinner and dance of the club was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Benefit at Barn

One of the highlights of the social season at The Barn will be Wednesday's night's program next week.

In conjunction with the regular amateur night program, from 8:30 to 9 o'clock, the fourth annual get-together for the benefit of St. Ann's Church of Sawkill and Ruby will be held.

The Rev. J. Warren Hughes, of St. Ann's, is planning to welcome the usual large gathering of parishioners and friends that attend the yearly event, and has a full evening of enjoyment planned.

Those who arrive early for the party will be able to hear and see the special amateur night program arranged by Bill Fitzpatrick, of The Barn, and enjoy the other entertainment that follows.

The Monterey bill will be at The Barn to furnish music for square dances, and Arnold Stanley's broadcasting band will play the modern music.

Old Fashioned Dance

The Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 6 will sponsor an old fashioned dance and supper at The Wiltwyck Arms, Monday evening, April 8.

Dancing will start at 8:30 o'clock with music by Pardee and Allen. A full course turkey supper will be served at midnight. Tickets may be purchased from members of the committee, Mrs. Henry N. Peters, Albany avenue extension; Mrs. Ralph Harper, 290 Albany avenue, assistant chairman; Mrs. John E. Drewes, Guyton street; Mrs. Clarence Wolfersiege, Hinsdale avenue, School No. 6 and Wiltwyck Arms.

Larsen-Leininger

Henry Leininger, Jr., of 318 Lucas avenue announces the marriage of his sister, Miss Evelyn Leininger, of Olive Bridge, to Arthur Larsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Larsen, of Atwood. They were united in marriage by the Rev. F. G. Baker, pastor of the Stone Ridge Church, on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. They were attended by Miss Evelyn Leininger, niece of the bride, and Milton Gerwin. The bride wore a rose dress and a corsage of gardenias. The maid of honor wore blue with a corsage of sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Larsen left on a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., after which they will reside in Stone Ridge.

With Ulster County Students On Campuses

Rhoda Neher of Woodstock and Ulysses Slater of Saugerties, two Ithaca College students, find that the war memorial on the campus is a good background for a candid camera shot. Both students are in the music department at Ithaca College. Miss Neher is a freshman and Mr. Slater a sophomore.

Phoenicia Pupils Win Prize Speaking

Phoenicia, April 6.—Two pupils from Phoenicia won first and second prizes at the annual prize speaking contest at the Fleischmanns High School auditorium Friday evening.

Mary Elizabeth McGrath, 16-year-old post graduate and valedictorian of the class of 1939 won first prize. Her selection was "Jean Valjean and the Good Bishop" by Victor Hugo. The girl's second prize was won by Kohar Kantzian of Pine Hill with "Is Shirley Insulted" by Arthur Kober.

The boy's first prize went to George Newcombe of Fleischmanns. He spoke "Trial of Ben Thomas," anonymous. Arnold Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Bell, Jr., of Phoenicia, won second prize. His subject was "Rest Cure" by Patricia Collings. Miss McGrath is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGrath of Phoenicia.

The judges were Mrs. Charles Griffin, Pine Hill; Mrs. Stanley Munro, Fleischmanns, and Miss Mary Gormley, Phoenicia.

D.A.R. Broadcast

Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be heard over Station WKNY Monday evening, April 8, at 9 o'clock, and not at 8 o'clock as formerly announced. The broadcast will be titled "What the D. A. R. Does," and will consist of an interview of Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, regent, and a short program of music by members of the chapter.

Sisterhood Movies

A pleasant evening is being planned on Sunday at the social hall of Temple Emanuel when moving pictures of previous Sisterhood Shows will be shown. A social hour with refreshments and dancing will follow the showing of the pictures. An enjoyable evening is promised all who attend.

Spross Rehearsal Tuesday

The Spross Chorus of the Musical Society will rehearse Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Maurice V. Venno, Albany avenue. All members are urged to be present.

Big Show Goes On

New York, April 6 (AP)—Despite a last-minute call for a strike of circus roustabouts, the big show of Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey opened as scheduled last night. While a dozen pickets paraded outside Madison Square Garden, John Ringling North, circus president, said "not one single employee has struck." The strike was called by Ralph Whitehead, head of the Circus, Carnival, Fair and Rodeo International Union, (AFL) who charged that John Ringling North, circus president, refused to negotiate a contract. North said he would negotiate, provided the union proved it represented a majority of the employees.

To better living

As Mark Twain said—"Everybody complains about the weather but nobody does anything about it."

Worst still, at this time of year folks let the weather "get" them. Why is our mortality rate so high at winter's end, and when the harsh weather is past, and Spring is so promising?

Well, at the end of a long forced march soldiers are weary, their strength is sapped. A long winter is like a forced march. It leaves us fatigued. Then we get a few balmy days, and feel relaxed. Next a cold wind blows—and sometimes we get pneumonia. Spring is an unhealthy time of year—with a balmy breeze from the South one day, and a raw East wind the next—sometimes the same day!

We can't do anything about the weather, but we can do a number of things to offset it. Keep the house dry, for one. It's on the days when it's too warm to keep the furnace or oil burner going all day that we say, "I'm chiller now than I was all winter."

For just those days there is a choice of at least three ways to keep dangerous chilly dampness out of the house. Our electrical Samson Open Hearth Room Heater literally may be called a "life-saver" in the Spring. It's mighty good-looking, and capable of room-filling heat.

It stands 20 inches high, 14 inches wide. Cabinet is Oxford gray finish, with chromium reflector and trim. Actually it's the most beautifully designed heater built.

It draws cold air off the floor, quickly heats it, then circulates billows of clean odorless warmth throughout an entire room, banishing all drafts.

Being portable, you can use it first in one room, then in another. The automatic safety switch eliminates fire hazard from accidental upsetting.

If you want a simpler heating device, ask to see our Heat Fan—a portable electric space heater built with a fan enclosed. Instead of over-heating one spot, as the old-fashioned electric heater did, this one blows hot air through the room. It's small, and absolutely safe to have in a room where children play.

If you'd rather have something that isn't electrical, the streamlined portable Perfection oil heaters will provide quick warmth anywhere. They give so much heat in all directions at so little cost!

Any of these heaters will be fine to take to the summer cabin later.

Mark Twain himself couldn't think of anything to do about the weather—but it really doesn't matter so long as man has been so wonderful in developing ways to keep it out. Actually we have "weather control" as well as flood control, soil erosion control, etc. A warm dry house is "weather control" over our immediate environment.

Amalgamated Roofing (asphalt shingles) is a good example of weather control. Asphalt itself is world renowned for its water-proofness and protection against weather. But when asphalt shingles are produced, 33 separate laboratory tests are made during the manufacturing process. These tests make sure of that rugged endurable quality which results in "long life on the roof."

Of course their resistance to fire is one of their major advantages. Sparks or burning brands from the chimney or those that might be carried by wind, die out when they fall upon the slate and stone granule surfacing of asphalt shingles.

We sell and recommend asphalt shingles because we have found them to provide a thoroughly satisfactory roofing. They can be laid over the old roof, which is a strong economy factor. There are several types including the Four-in-one, or "strip" shingle which is easy to apply

FASHIONS and HOUSEHOLD HINTS FOR WOMEN

Your Screen Test

- (a) What film actress and comedienne of the London music halls recently was married to a British producer on the West Coast? (b) What is her husband's name?

—With Guests For Dinner

(A) Feature Service

Check over the table setting at the last minute before the guests come in, Madame, to be sure everything's in its place. And if the hostess has to serve, too, it's quite proper, and generally works out more comfortably, if the food is on the table before the guests are summoned to be seated.

In planning the meal, don't ask the maid to make a grand new dish or let her persuade you to let her try something she's never tackled before unless she's a born cook. Likewise, if you're the cook, it's best to serve tried dishes. The old standbys make the hits with guests, anyway.

If you know your guest likes roast beef especially well give him roast beef occasionally, at least. It isn't necessary to prepare fancy food to please him.

If the salad fork is missing, don't apologize. Get it with as little fuss as possible. If it's your maid's fault, don't make her feel stupid, by reprimanding her before guests; that will only hinder her service.

After guests are gone, it's only fair to tell the maid her prize dish was appreciated, and it's every considerate for the family to tell mother the guests praised her food while she was in the kitchen.

NOT NECESSARY TO SAY GOOD-BYE AT AFTERNOON PARTY IF YOU LEAVE SOON

Looking Up Hostess Merely Attracts Attention to Fact That More Important Engagement Takes You Away

I want to print again, for the benefit of some of the readers of this column who evidently missed what has appeared here lately on the subject, that when you go to a large afternoon tea or garden party or reception of any kind and have to leave again very shortly, and while the hostess is still receiving arriving guests, it is not considered necessary or even courteous to go back to her to say good-bye. Nor do you say good-bye to a member of her family.

Naturally, if you happened to encounter one of the latter as you are leaving the house, you would tell him (or her) how glad you were to have been able to come in even for so short a time. On the other hand, if you have stayed until almost the end of the party, you do then look for the hostess to say good-bye and to thank her for your pleasant time. The reason why you do not look for her if you leave early is that it merely attracts attention to the fact that you are not having a pleasant time or else that you have no time (from more important engagements) to spend with her.

A Divorcee Becomes Engaged
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it unsuitable for a divorcee to accept an engagement ring, and if not, what is she supposed to do with her first ring?
Answer: Certainly, when she is engaged, she may accept — and wear — an engagement ring. If she has not already discarded her first engagement ring, or at least changed it from her left to her right hand, then she must of course do one or the other as soon as she acknowledges her engagement.

Invitations to Include Daughter
Dear Mrs. Post: We want to send invitations to a reception which is being given for the express purpose of honoring our daughter, just after her engagement has been announced. The invitations have to be mailed before the announcement of the engagement will appear in the papers, so we don't want the wording of the invitations to give out the news.
Answer: If her name is engraved (or written) under yours, this will simply mean that your daughter is going to be present at the party you are giving, or it may mean she is giving the party with you. But it does not announce that the party is for her. Do you see?

A Rule of Table Manners
Dear Mrs. Post: Is there any rule about keeping the left hand in one's lap while eating when it is not in actual use?
Answer: There is a rule, yes, but this is not strictly enforced except when teaching best table manners to little children. There are usually very few times when the left hand is not busy, holding the fork while cutting food or holding a piece of bread. It would be very awkward for most people to sit throughout a meal with one hand lying limp in the lap, and instead most people find it more natural to vary the position of the hand somewhat — sometimes holding it against the table's edge, often using it. As I said, however, when a child is not using his pusher or being taught to use his knife and fork together, he should be taught to leave his hand in his lap. At least until he can be counted on not to lean on his left elbow, or worse, let his left arm completely encircle his plate. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Table Rules of Importance." Be sure to send a three-cent, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post in care of this paper, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y.

Faulty Table Manners Spell Failure Socially

East Difficult Foods Correctly
She spent hours dressing for this important dinner date—but she didn't give a thought to her table manners.
"Never again!" her escort mentally comments, as she showers the table with salad in her efforts to cut hearts of lettuce with a fork.

This Spring's Mode in Dresses Is a Whirligig

They Run From Flared to Slim; Many Use Prints

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Fashion Editor

Spring fashions have launched one of the most scrambled dress modes in years.

As a result, many women are running around in circles, unable to make up their minds as to what they want. None of the dresses, they say, looks extremely new. Yet there is change enough to call for a new dress. Question is: Where shall it be?

Here are the highlights:
FAVORITE SILHOUETTE seems to be one designed with a flared skirt having a fair amount of fullness topped by a snug bodice, often following long-torso lines. (This is slightly reminiscent of last year's much-liked "little girl" silhouette.)

The FLARED SKIRTS themselves show a good deal of variety. Some are designed with hip yokes; others gathered smoothly at the base of a long torso. Another group concentrates fullness in front.

Newer, but less in evidence, are SLIM-SKIRTED FROCKS with bloused tops, launched in Paris. American designers have added to the variety by grafting the bloused top to a flared skirt.

Lots of frocks are made of PRINTS. Favorites this year are in small neat patterns—gay flowers or little geometric figures. There are also many two-toned animal prints, so highly conventionalized they must be studied to discover the horse or cat in the print. Others are splashed at a distance with mouse or penguin figures.

Among the SMARTEST FROCKS are those of plain black, navy blue, beige or gray jersey or crepe, cut along the suave lines of an afternoon frock. Often the long-beloved white lingerie touch appears.

In choosing your frock consider three things: (1) the type of coat with which it will be worn, (2) the places where it will be worn and (3) your hat. Hats are exremely important this year, for they show great variety and color. Fashions are widely used and give a "dressed-up look."

If you must have flowers on your new chapeaux, better choose a frock of plain fabric to set it in relief. But if you have set your

Flowers as Hair Decorations Blossom North of the Border

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

This season you will go dancing the South American way—with a flower in your hair. Not since grandmother's glamour days have flowers graced feminine heads so often.

To be sure, the North American belle uses diplomacy in adapting flower intrigue to her personality. Instead of an outright mantilla, she arranges just a bit of lace from the crown of her head to low sculptured curls at her neck. But no combs showing!

She is making use of the rose the way the Latin does. Not just in the evening either. Keeping to the top-of-the-head popularity, the rose goes toward the front of the coiffure above the part with informal clothes from morning through the night. But the old Spanish custom of dropping a rose just behind the left ear is complete concession to Mexican and Cuban beauties. And a cinch for charm is a trio of small flowers (or a single big one) at the nape of the neck to secure the chignon.

Wild flowers and unusual flowers provide an exotic touch. In California, twin cala-lilies are current stars in the hair. One calaly at the side drops leaves over the forehead and its mate at the back helps form a saucy sophisticated cap.

Lucille Fairbanks, of the movies, wears a fan-shaped point de venise lace ornament at the top of this coiffure.

Just a suggestion of mantilla, is the lace-and-ribbon ornament Miss Fairbanks uses here. A spray of lilies of the valley rests in her curls.

This is one version of the new vogue for flowers, a pink gardenia looped with black velvet ribbon and perched over the left eye.

Even brides are partial to fresh flowers for the hair this year. One New York social register girl had baby-white orchids from the crown of her head back almost in shape of a snood.

The flower craze is a headline for women of all ages this summer. Young girls are trying many different flowers. Some women often choose a single orchid, rose, gardenia or camellia. But, with fashion going on a color spree, women are more daring with flower colors. Wise blondes choose pastel colored blossoms while the brunettes experiment with very gay colors.

Laura de Gez, a New York hair stylist, says if you don't wear a flower, you ought to wear a ribbon morning, noon and night, or let your hair be ornamented for your hat. With the crownless hats she brings hair high through the top, draping it like a plume. For skull caps, she styles the hair in winged design (fluffy for dress and sculptured curls for tailored wear). Baby-type lacy hats take on special interest with gay-90's curled bangs. In any event, you will want a nice hairline to show two or three inches or will want to conceal a not-so-nice one with beaucatcher tendrils.

Slip Covers Are the Thing For Style as Well as Utility

AP Feature Service

Slip covers this summer must be more than bright wrappings for the furniture. They've become a part of the decorative scheme. You may even find yourself playing with the idea of covering your boudoir chair, dining chairs and a small table. They're actually making slip covers for beds and grand pianos nowadays!

So, in the midst of spring cleaning, don't get in the dumps believe the size of the designs vary, too. Likewise, if your wallpaper is printed, the size of the design in the slip cover should contrast sharply with that of the paper (and the draperies ought to be plain).

As long as your selection gives the room a restful effect, you don't need to be afraid of too much color. Decorators suggest combinations like emerald green and sapphire blue. And new oatmeal shades blend well with bright hues like coral, flame red and jade. Bright pipings are ef-cause your most comfortable chair looks as if the cat and dog used it for a battlefield. Here's your chance to prove that your common sense and eye for color can make your room more up-to-date; give the old chair a good-looking but economical slip cover.

The old easy chair, in a new flowered slip cover, becomes the star of your living room decorative scheme.

Here is the way to chart your course:

First, get exact measurements of the furniture.

Then survey other colors and designs in the room. There's a trend to have window drapes and one or two slip covers in the same large floral print. Other pieces of furniture, in that case, usually are covered with plain fabric that picks up the basic shade in the print. Or the emphasis can be on contrasting tones.

When design of drapery differs from design of slip cover material, the flavors are grand together.

Plenty of Calories
If you don't worry over calories, put a dash of white cream cheese, blended with whipped cream, on top of your blackberry or apple pie the next time you serve it. The flavors are grand together.

Olympic Trials Likely to Go On

Austin, Tex., April 6 (AP)—Crowded with stars from 11 states, the 13th annual Texas relays started under leaden skies today with an added incentive for the athletes after an unexpected announcement. American Olympic track and field trials may be held even though the international games are cancelled.

Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, chairman of the track and field committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, told assembled coaches "it is quite likely" Olympic trials will be run at Los Angeles early in July.

The coaches, representing some of the nation's best talent, unanimously endorsed the idea. Wilson said he had talked with Avery Brundage, head of the Olympic games committee, and that definite, but incomplete plans, had been laid for the tryouts.

"The possibility of holding a Pan-American games has been abandoned," said Wilson, athletic director of Northwestern University and referee of today's meet. "But we will have hopes of having American trials. The college youngsters who have lived and worked for this day should have some reward."

Big Game Show At Hurley Club

Monday night at 8 o'clock the Hurley Gun Club will meet at its clubhouse for a social and refreshments.

During the program, movies will be shown of "Canadian Big Game Hunting" and Fred Van Deusen will entertain with magic.

It is requested that all members of the club make a special effort to attend.

Rangers Confident Of Hockey Flag

Toronto, April 6 (AP)—The New York Rangers realize they had tough sledding in their opening hockey playoff series with Boston because of over-confidence, yet it's hard for them to be too serious about the Stanley Cup finals after two straight victories over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

They took their first practice at Maple Leaf Gardens as something of a lark yesterday, and the talk now centers around a possible record of six straight playoff victories. It seems a certainty that they will win two more games from the Leafs out of a possible five to be played here.

Last Wednesday's 6-2 triumph in New York was the Rangers' fifth straight in the playoffs. Several clubs have done that trick but the nearest thing to six straight was the Montreal Maroons' seven-game unbeaten streak in 1935, when the preliminary rounds were decided on a total-go basis. The Maroons had two ties.

The Rangers still are in top shape after eight strenuous games. "We haven't an injured player on the club," commented Manager Lester Patrick. "This is still a tough job, and I'm not saying my prediction that it will go six games, but we're in now."

Minneapolis—Arne Anderson, 195½, Sweden, awarded decision over Paul Williams, 228, Chicago, in fourth round. Williams disqualified for being out of shape and not trying.

Hard to Judge Which Rookie Will Come Through in Majors

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

By The Associated Press

Rocky Mount, N. C.—Paul Deringer, the Cincinnati Reds' pitcher, who has had unpleasant experiences with both teams, says the Boston Red Sox have more power than the World Champion New York Yankees.

"Every man in the Sox lineup, except the batterman, can knock the ball out of the park," he declared. "In my book Ted Williams is just about the toughest hitter in the game."

Able Successor—Although Lefty Gomez apparently has reached the age where he likes to save his salary wing for the championship season, the New York Yankees seem to have come up with an able successor in Mariano Russo. Gomez didn't show much speed nor use his curve often in a five-inning, four-hit stint against Little Rock yesterday. He's worked only 12 exhibition innings this spring. Russo, following him, gave the travelers only three more blows.

Job Still Open—New Orleans—When spring training opened, the St. Louis Cardinals had five players trying for shortstop. The job still is open, although Martin Marion does seem to have an edge. The reappearances of Jimmy Brown and the constant improvement of Don Gutteridge may change the situation again.

Managers Absent—Enid, Okla.—The Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago White Sox tangle in the fifth game of their exhibition series today with neither manager on the job: Frank Frisch of the Bugs is recovering from an infected throat at Wichita, Kans., while Jimmy Dykes is in Philadelphia, where his wife recently underwent an appendectomy.

Clean Up Day—Dallas, Tex.—Monday may be an eventful day for some members of the Philadelphia Athletics' squad. That's the date set by Manager Connie Mack for announcing what players will be released, optioned or retained.

Tigers Blast 'Em—Chattanooga, Tenn.—The explanation for the fact that the Brooklyn Dodgers are "cousins" of Detroit's Tigers, but Manager Leo Durocher of Brooklyn already has shaken up his batting order for the first time and the Detroit cloutings have been making those seventh-place predictions look bad. Camilli came out of a prolonged slump after being dropped to sixth place yesterday, but the Tigers blasted the Brooks for 18 blows, good for 35 bases.

Dangerous Is Right—Valdosta, Ga.—Little Heinie Mueller still is a dangerous man at the plate for the Phillies—when he gets there. Heinie was a success last year as a pinch hitter, and in the same role yesterday he bashed a homer with the bases full against Jacksonville of the Sally League.

A Tough Climb—Atlanta—St. Louis, Wash.—The tall, lean pitcher from Roosevelt, Ga., has a tough assignment ahead—proving a man can jump from a class D league to the majors in one season. Rated one of the team's most promising rookies, Hudson never pitched until 1938, when he joined Sanford in the Florida State League. Last year he won 24 and lost 4 for Sanford.

May Be Shifted—Savannah, Ga.—Lou Fette, one of the reasons why Casey Stengel of the Boston Bees hasn't smiled in weeks, gets the nod today against the Savannah Club. If Fette doesn't go to town today Casey will be tempted to send him along to Bill McKelchie, who always is willing to take a chance on one of his old producers.

The French government in 1790 declared foundlings to be "children of the state."

When he's through playing a round of golf, he shuns hotel lobbies, where fellow-pros gather to replay the shots they missed. He has a neat philosophy which reasons that the moment you've made a shot, it's time to forget it.

This is Jimmy Demaret. He is tied with Lloyd Mangrum for the lead in the Augusta Masters golf tournament. To top it all off, he is one of the friendliest lads we've run into in a good many years of writing about athletes, professional or otherwise.

For 36 holes over one of the most testing courses in the country, Demaret has shot 139, five strokes under par. There are a lot of other pros who, in a similar position, would be tightening up and playing those next 36 holes in advance, or the past 36 in retrospect.

Jimmy may be tightening up, but he isn't showing it. This 29-year-old "kid" out of Houston, Texas, has the ideal outlook for the business he's in.

As long as I've been playing golf," he tells you, "I've tried to train myself to the idea of playing one hole at a time, of playing one shot at a time. Once in a while I slip out of that. I'll miss a short putt on one green, and go to the next tee still mad."

Forget the Past—What happens? What always happens? I forget to concentrate on bringing the clubhead back slowly, or keeping that left arm straight, and blooey—I'm in the trees. So, besides that bad putt, I've lost another stroke. It doesn't pay. Play them one at a time, either hole or stroke, and forget them when you've played them."

Three native Texans are leading the select Augusta field. Demaret shot a par 72 yesterday to go with his previous 67. Mangrum slipped from his sensational opening 67 to 75. Byron Nelson, Open champion, fired a 72 to gain third place two strokes back of the leaders with a 141.

New York, April 6 (AP)—It is not as easy to point a finger at the "rookie of the year" this spring as last year, when Ted Williams, of the Boston Red Sox towered like a lighthouse over the other baseball freshmen.

Williams more than fulfilled every expectation, and had only one serious rival among the big league beginners—Charlie Keller, of the Yankees. Williams' average of .327 was not quite equal to Keller's .334, but the limber Boston youngster proved himself a much greater distance hitter than the swarthy Yankee.

Is there a slinger like Williams or Keller in the 1940 crop, or a pitcher like Atley Donald, who won 15 while losing only three for the Yankees last year? Possibly, but those who have watched the juvenile stars train from Florida to California have failed notably to agree on the one most likely to succeed.

Ballyhoo for Don—Dominic DiMaggio, another Red Sox recruit, carries the biggest burden of advance ballyhoo, as Freddy Hutchinson, Detroit's wonder boy pitcher, did a year ago. Hutchinson was a monumental disappointment, and it remains to be seen whether the youngest of the DiMaggios can come close to living up to his billing.

Don had little opportunity to prove his ability before he injured an ankle in an exhibition game at Tampa, so the season may be well advanced before the Sox learn whether they received their money's worth.

In the meantime, DiMaggio has surrendered the rookie headlines to Johnny Rucker, of the Giants. The kid from Atlanta has been pouring the ball at a 400 clip in the south and appears to have clinched a berth in the Giants' outfield. Here again, however, is a player like DiMaggio who is not a distance hitter.

Must Hit Better—Oscar Vutt, the Cleveland manager, believes he has a truly great shortstop in Lou Boudreau, who finished with the Indians last year but still may be classified as a rookie. But even if Lou's fielding is everything Oscar says it is, he still has to prove he can hit big league pitching.

Brooklyn almost certainly has a future shortstop star in "Pee Wee" Reese, from Louisville, who in the Southern Association last year in base stealing and three-base hits and was the sensation of the Little World Series. Purely on a hunch, he might be our "rookie of the year."

At least, Reese is blessed with the same carefree confidence that attracted the critics to Williams a year ago.

There is a good piece on Umpire Bill Klem in one of the magazines (Collier's) this week. Where did they dig up those posters they're using to advertise the Dodgers in the south? They show Durocher in a Yankee cap, Wyatt in a Tiger Cap and Camilli in a Philly Cap. Barney Ross has quit as official greeter in the cocktail lounge of the Morrison Hotel to open his own spot on Chicago's north side. Everybody who's seen him says Pete Layden, U. of Texas outfielder, is definitely big league timber. Marquette and Wisconsin, neighborhood football rivals, bow into the big town on the same Saturday next fall—Marquette against Manhattan and Wisconsin vs. Columbia.

Don't Miss It—Most amazing book to reach this department in a long time is "The Baseball Register," just issued by "Sporting News." It has all the dope on every player in the majors two years or longer; all the managers and coaches and former stars and immortals of the game. Even tells you the color of their eyes, who they married and their hobbies.

Bowling Dept.—Call it coincidence, if you like, but the Heileman Brews bowling teams of La Crosse and Milwaukee, Wis., both topped 350 on the same night last week-end, for La Crosse and 3164 for Milwaukee. Both marks were higher than the score which won last year's American Bowling Congress.

Sports Roundup

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, April 6 (AP)—Tattle tales: Don't be surprised if the Dodgers train in California next year....Max Schmeling wrote Mike Jacobs he plans to visit the U. S. this summer and would like to get in there again with Joe Louis....Derby horse to watch: Russell Firestone's Marogay which ran first three times and second four times in seven starts last year....A deal which would have given Jack Dempsey his third New York restaurant—this one in a choice Brooklyn spot—fell through yesterday....Horsemen at Bowie are passing around petitions asking the track owners to install the Puett starting gate.

Caramba!—Al Schacht wrote Havana promoters asking if they wanted him to do his stuff before one of the big league exhibition games....He received a long reply in Spanish. From Tampa, Schacht phoned his learned friend, Prof. Moe Berg, at Sarasota, laboriously spelled out the communication in full and asked: "What does it mean?" "It means no," replied Prof. Berg.

Young Pat Comiskey has signed to fight Larry Marino at Baltimore April 11—his first start since he hurt his hands against Steve Dudas three months ago....The N. C. A. A. made so much dough out of its series of basketball play-off tournaments, it doesn't know what to do with the velvet....Chattanooga fans are pitching a big party Wednesday night for Manager Ki Ki Cuyler, who is 100 per cent down there....Bob Pastor turned down a May 3 Garden date with Melio Bettina....Tony Galento, on tour with the wrestlers, mails from 25 to 50 postals home each day reminding the customers his heart is still back there in the old beer stub.

Today's Guest Star—John P. Carmichael, Chicago Daily News: "Only 11,000 customers for Louis-Paychek....Showing it is impossible to fool all the people all of the time."

There is a good piece on Umpire Bill Klem in one of the magazines (Collier's) this week. Where did they dig up those posters they're using to advertise the Dodgers in the south? They show Durocher in a Yankee cap, Wyatt in a Tiger Cap and Camilli in a Philly Cap. Barney Ross has quit as official greeter in the cocktail lounge of the Morrison Hotel to open his own spot on Chicago's north side. Everybody who's seen him says Pete Layden, U. of Texas outfielder, is definitely big league timber. Marquette and Wisconsin, neighborhood football rivals, bow into the big town on the same Saturday next fall—Marquette against Manhattan and Wisconsin vs. Columbia.

Don't Miss It—Most amazing book to reach this department in a long time is "The Baseball Register," just issued by "Sporting News." It has all the dope on every player in the majors two years or longer; all the managers and coaches and former stars and immortals of the game. Even tells you the color of their eyes, who they married and their hobbies.

Justice Declares Middletown Work Part of Treatment

The son, employed in Newburgh, is not financially able to make any contribution toward his father's support, counsel told the court.

Justice Murray said that the law was specific in the matter and that the state should not be expected to support the inmate, clothe, feed and give him medical care without compensation if the incompetent had funds.

"He is getting board and medical attention in a splendid institution," said Justice Murray, and he ruled that payments should be made from the funds of the incompetent. However, he said, the order should be drawn so that when the fund has been depleted served as a burial fund. Later Mr. Moses, assistant attorney general, raised that amount to $450 and when the fund reached $450 counsel for the incompetent may move to cease payments. This will allow a sufficient sum to pay the compensation of the committee of the estate of the incompetent and also to pay counsel fees and still allow $350 to remain in the fund for general costs.

Night Club Singer Abducted by Gang, Is Turkus' Story

Mittleman, friend of several alleged members of the murder combine, would be added to the mob's death list if given liberty at this time.

Authorities said at least five persons have been saved from gang vengeance by high bail and jail since the inquiry began. Turkus said they were picked up after tips that they had been marked for extinction.

"And it's my guess," Turkus added, "that none of these five would want to be anywhere but in jail at this moment."

MEMORIAM

In sad and loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Charles Myers, who departed this life nine years ago today, April 6, 1931.

Backward, turn backward, oh time in your flight, Make me a child again just for tonight.

Mother come back from that echoless shore, Take me again to your heart as of yore.

Kiss from my forehead the furrows of care, Smooth the few silver threads out of my hair.

Over my slumbers, your loving watch keep, Rock me to sleep mother, rock me to sleep.

SONS AND DAUGHTERS

IN MEMORIAM.

In remembrance of my mother, Mrs. John H. Broadhead, who departed life April 7, 1933. Mrs. Andrew Tubby.

fore Christmas, explaining that for her it was a way out of the depression.

The police said they learned further, that ever since, Scheafner had been trying to persuade her to return and had gone to clergymen and the police vainly seeking help.

Scheafner had been dead five days, according to a St. John's Hospital surgeon. Other tenants apparently had not noticed the gas, because he had stuffed all cracks in the doors of his apartment.

The body was found on the floor with a rubber hose leading from a gas jet to Scheafner's mouth.

Labor Trouble at Lackawack Denied

George Comeau, business representative of Iron Workers No. 417, of Newburgh stated to The Freeman today that the organization he represents is not involved in any controversy with Laborers Local, No. 17 or any other present trades union working on the Lackawack dam.

At a meeting in February difficulties were straightened out, he said, and harmony has been in progress since that time. The assertion that trouble could be expected at any time, was also denied by Iron Workers representative.

Building brings SALES volume to every line of business....

Did you think that the only ones who profit financially from building a new home were the builders? They do profit considerably, but so do the workmen, and the lumber supply companies and their employees—in fact, everyone, who has any direct contact with the building, profits. They all have more money to spend for their needs.

Of course, the home furnishers and landscape gardeners and decorators make direct sales to the family who owns the new home. But the businesses that profit the most are those who sell merchandise or services to the workmen, the architect, the furniture store delivery man, and all the others who take part in helping to build and furnish a new home. In turn the butcher, the baker, the grocer, and the laundryman are able to buy new clothes from the man who lives in the new home.

That is business.

You can prepare to get your fair share of all this business by planning an intelligent and thorough advertising campaign. Direct your campaign at the great majority of this new market developed by the spring building boom—advertise in the Daily Freeman! Daily Freeman circulation covers the entire Kingston market every day of the week!
